OF all the questions that I have to answer in connection with beauty, to do with hairdressing the most difficult are those styles. Describing clothes, cosmetics, or beauty treatments is child's play compared with hair fashions.

Hairdressing has changed so much lately. It is no longer fashionable to wear your hair parted on one side with corrugated waves over the crown of your head and dozens of little round sausage curls at the back. The smartest women now wear their hair brushed absolutely smoothly over the crowns of their heads, in most cases without even a suspicion of a wave.

LITTLE fat round curls that stand away from the head have now given place to soft flat curls

that lie close against the forehead and the back of the neck. No matter where you wear your parting, your hair must be brushed away from your temples.

If you part your hair on one side you may have one or even two flat curls rolled back from your forehead. The hair is cut short as it would be for a fringe, only instead of brushed down it is brushed back into a roll or one or two curls.

The hair is brushed away from the temples, arranging the curls or the roll to leave the lower part of the ear exposed.

Some women part their hair in the centre and arrange one or two curls softly brushed on each side of the parting. Fringes that come down over the forehead are now worn curled.

SOME of London's smartest young married women have their hair brushed completely flat like a skull cap, with the one roll of hair brushed high up off the forehead and continued all round the back of the head. This makes the face look very hard, but it is considered smart.

Where soft, flat curls are worn at the back of the head they are usually arranged diagonally.

If no parting at all is used the hair can be brushed off the forehead and a row of little curls brushed from back to front which gives the effect of a tiara of hair.

THE styles Angrave has sketched give you very good examples of the newest hair styles.

If you have rather a flat back to your head which needs to be disguised with rather elaborate hairdressing, study the girl with her back to you. You will see that the hair is brushed diagonally across the crown of the head and arranged in large, flat curls across the back.

It would be equally fashionable to wear one row of these curls instead of two.

Some women prefer to have one or two curls over the ears and the hair brushed up into one coil only all across the back of the neck. This arrangement at the back can be worn with any of the other three styles shown.

When Baby has BRONCHITIS

MY article this week has once again been chosen to comply with my postbag. This time of year colds have an unpleasant way of going on the chest. So if, in spite of our best efforts, the cold or catarrh from which the child is suffering turns to bronchitis much anxiety will be avoided if the young patient is kept in bed from the onset.

If too well to stay in bed, however, he should be confined to one room so that he is in the same temperature.

At night a moderate fire should be kept up so that the air does not get that icy chill which makes English bedrooms so shivery in the dawn.

By Dr.
Mary Anthony

EVEN if there is no fever all draughts should be avoided. In a large room a screen can be placed round the bed, or behind the patient's armchair. If an ordinary folding screen is not available a clothes' horse hung with blankets is a useful shelter for a child's cot or low chair.

The room should not be too hot and ventilation can be managed without a draught by suitable arrangement of door or window.

If the child is seriously ill with bronchitis or broncho-pneumonia the doctor may order an oxygen tent. The oxygen relieves the distressed lungs and eases the burden of the labouring heart and the patient is quite happy, for he can see through the window in the tent.

For home treatment a steam kettle is sometimes ordered. If this is used at night the child should not be allowed out of doors too soon as a relapse may follow. He should remain in for at least one day after the steam kettle treatment.

An ordinary kettle with a long spout or with a piece of tubing attached, can be kept on the boil so that the air is kept moist. A teaspoonful of Epsom's Balsam may be added to the water.

A JACKET made of gamgee tissue (a thick layer of cotton-wool between two layers of butter muslin) is advisable for keeping the chest warm without the trouble of poultices. It can be pinned comfortably round the chest whilst two straps of tape hold it in place over the shoulders.

The old-fashioned method of removing this jacket piece by piece has much to commend it, as it lessens the danger of chill. Gamgee may be obtained from the chemist.

SLEEP is very important and should be encouraged by shading the windows and keeping the household as quiet as possible.

If the child is too ill to take solids, a fluid diet gives adequate nourishment and keeps up the strength. One or two pints of milk and a cup of soup can be managed daily.

When the stomach is not upset by the coughing, a beaten-up egg in milk or a steamed custard is good. If this useful milk diet proves too heavy, the addition of a teaspoonful of extract of malt will make it more digestible. Water, of course, should be given freely, and is usually well taken in the form of lemonade or sweetened barley water.

As the patient improves milk puddings may be given, and toast, also fish.

THE trouble with bronchitis is its tendency to recur on the slightest weakness of the patient. Every care should be taken to prevent a relapse during convalescence.

Once the child is able to get up he should be kept in his room for a few days. After a short time in bed a child's limbs are flabby, and loss of weight is usually marked. This is the stage which requires careful watching until strength is built up.

When he is moving about the house the rooms should not be cold. By the time he is acclimatised once more a calm, bright day, with no sharp wind, will come along when he can safely venture out of doors.

A change of air is advisable before returning to school. Such places as Bournemouth or Torquay or Colwyn Bay are suitable if sunnier climes are not possible.

WHEN recurrent attacks of bronchitis are due to chronic nasal catarrh or constant coughing, vaccines may be helpful. These are usually injected in carefully marked amounts, and older children sometimes benefit by them. This treatment is, of course, a question for the patient's own doctor to decide.

There is nothing so valuable as getting the child hardened to an open-air life. In this way his appetite improves and his physique is better.

Clothing should receive special attention as to its warmth without excessive weight. The clothes worn next the skin should be capable of absorbing moisture, and so prevent the skin from becoming chilled. Fine wool or a mixture of wool and silk are good.

Parents love to muffle a delicate child up to the ears. As this makes the throat delicate a closed-up collar should only be worn when the child is sitting still in the open air freely, and is usually well taken in or when travelling.

NEPHRITIS

READERS often write in asking me for advice on various affections of the kidneys.

Renal disease, or kidney trouble, is a frequent cause of invalidism. The acute state usually follows a fever such as diphtheria or scarlet. Sometimes there is a considerable amount of swelling or dropsy in the limbs; heart failure is not unusual at this time.

IF recovery is not complete the next stage. The kidneys may have been inadequate from birth, or there may be some other reason for their sudden failure.

Usually the victim's pale, white face and lifeless eyes are an index of his illness.

After middle age chronic kidney trouble gets worse the heart begins to fail and there is a danger of coma or unconsciousness.

DIET can be of great value in the early stages. At the beginning all food is withheld for a period varying from 12 to 36 hours. Even children stand this starvation provided they are kept warm and given plenty of fluids.

By Family Doctor

Ordinary water, lemonade, barley-water, soda-water or Vichy water may be given, as much as the patient can take without forcing.

If there is nausea and vomiting glucose will relieve it, or sucking barley-sugar.

Afterwards milk and fruit juice may be given, and as the patient improves milk puddings and tea can be added.

WHEN there has been a great deal of dropsy a salt-free diet should be tried, whilst the fluid intake is limited. Later fish and poultry are easily digested, as are also most vegetables.

It is a wise rule to avoid certain vegetables and fruits because of the strain they put on the kidneys. Many readers will be interested in the following list of things to be avoided because they are rich in oxalates: Spinach, french beans, tomatoes, strawberries, rhubarb. Meat extracts, rich soups and sweetbreads are also unsuitable, as, of course, are highly-spiced or preserved foods.

"No Woman Need Grow Old"—Yogi Expert Claims "Miracles"—

WOMAN OF 70 LOOKS LIKE A GIRL

A man who admits to being over 50, with the boyish features and the vitality of a young man of 25, claims to be able to take 10 to 30 years off the life of almost every woman over 50.

Seated in his London flat, his forearms bound with two serpents of gold, his long black hair coiffured like a woman's, the Rajah Lala Krishna Raphael Ram Singh made an impressive figure as he described to a London Newspaper representative the "miracles" he has wrought.

20 Years Younger

The walls of the little room were covered with photographs of beautiful women—the women whom the Rajah says have lost 20 years and regained new youth and looks by his system.

He pointed to the smiling portrait of a well-known London hostess.

"When she came to me her hair was grey and turning to silver," said the Rajah.

"She placed herself in my hands, and within a fortnight her hair had been restored to its youthful brown colour."

"To-day that woman looks and feels 20 years younger."

"She was 70, and thought that there was nothing left for her but a few years of miserable old age and death."

"Within a few months she had returned to the career of her youth, and was singing once more upon the concert platform."

The Rajah waved his thin gold-ringed fingers as if in blessing. "No woman who submits to my system of diet, exercise, and mental control need ever grow old or be ugly," he said.

His System

"Beauty comes from within. There is no short cut to rejuvenation, and I do not possess an elixir of life."

"Gracefulness, gentleness, kindness, motherliness—these are the qualities I teach to women. A woman who possesses them must be young and appear young."

"By a perfected system of Yoga breath control and by strict attention to a diet based on the simple products of the earth, every woman can cultivate the characteristics that will give her beauty."

LOCH NESS MONSTER Makes Film Debut

London, Dec. 18. Cinema-goers in Australia and New Zealand may soon get a glimpse of the famous—and some say fabulous—Monster of Loch Ness. It has made its debut on the British screen this week as star of a special feature in the first number of a Scottish monthly film review, "Things That Happen."

As much money has been spent on tracking the monster as on the salary of a film-star with box-office draw.

But the Loch Ness monster is as elusive as Greta Garbo. Both seem to have the cold northern temperament.

The film was obtained only six weeks ago, after three years of effort.

It shows an animal more than 30 feet long, swimming through the loch at a speed of 30 knots—as fast as the Queen Mary.

"Dark grey, almost black in colour, and very shiny; the head and neck were parallel with the surface and rising and falling with the movement of the huge body; humps visible as the flippers move beneath them."

That is how Malcolm M. Irvine, director of Scottish Film Productions, who "shot" the monster with a telescopic camera, described the beast.

"1938" STAMP ERROR JOHANNESBURG VALUES LIKELY TO SOAR

An error in the date on some of the special South African stamps issued to commemorate the Johannesburg Exhibition may unexpectedly increase their value. News of this printing oversight reached London recently.

It was stated that a few of the stamps are dated 1938, instead of 1936. The error was discovered by a gatekeeper who took a casual glance at the stamps, which form part of a collection at the Exhibition.

A fourpenny New Zealand stamp, printed in 1933, had by some mischance its centre printed upside-down. Six years ago it was sold in London for about £30. Other rarities included eleven West Australian fourpennies with an inverted swan. Some of these have been valued at nearly £100.

NOW THERE ARE SIX

France Doubles Her Women Pilots

Paris, Dec. 31.

THREE more women pilots have passed the tests for the public aerial transport certificate, making the total six. New holders are:

Mme. Flaut, who recently flew to Madagascar as a tribute to the memory of her aviator husband, killed in a crash in Kenya in 1935; Mme. de la Combe, who has taken part in many air races; and Mlle. Lion.

Previous holders were Mlle. Maryse Hilsz, the "Amy Johnson" of France; Mlle. Maryse Hilsz, who flew from Le Bourget to Gorki, in Russia, in record time in 1931 and broke Jean Batten's South Atlantic record this week; and Mlle. Regina Winska.—Reuter.

Ex-King Edward Sold 15 Famous Dogs

All the spaniels' names begin with the letter "S." They include the famous team Sandringham, Selon, Sparkle, and Scoury, which have appeared at many shows.

Queen Mary probably noticed other changes when she visited Sandringham at Christmas.

The vineyard and many greenhouses have been pulled down because upkeep was unnecessary and expensive.

Part of the kitchen gardens has also been put to grass.

There are now no fallow deer in the woods.

Sandringham has contained a big Christmas tree, from which Queen Mary handed gifts to the servants, estate tenants, and their children.

The King and Queen with Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret, stayed with Queen Mary at Sandringham.

WINTER LAY-UP

The German airship "Hindenburg" recently undertook her last voyage across the Atlantic Ocean for this season. She will lay up for the winter.

Rome And The Revolt In Spain

Rome, Dec. 30.

Mr. Average Italian is horrified by the brutality of the civil war in Spain but his sympathies are all with the Nationalists.

He really hasn't much choice because everything he reads in his newspapers exalts the Nationalists and execrates the Loyalists.

The influence of the Catholic Church is also wielded in favour of the Nationalists. The Osservatore Romano, semi-official organ of the Vatican, has gone into greater detail about alleged Red atrocities in Spain than any Italian newspaper.

What amazes the Average Italian is the savagery of the Spanish war. It is his belief that all the atrocities are committed by the Loyalists, while the Nationalists are delivering the country from the alleged horrors of Communism.

The man-on-the-street is told, and he believes it, that the war in Spain is no longer between Spaniards of different political philosophies, but between Spaniards (the Nationalists) and Red foreigners, assisted by a few bolshevised Spaniards.

Typical was the comment of your correspondent's grocer: "We Italians," he said, "are in favour of the Nationalists because the other are murderers of priests, nuns and children who want to bring communism to Spain."

Italian newspapers have no correspondents on the Loyalist side. What news they print from this side comes from foreign sources. But all references to Loyalist courage are deleted. Occasionally the newspapers admit the Reds, as the Loyalists are called, are putting up stubborn resistance, but they attribute this to foreign suggestions that General Franco's air force includes many Italian and German pilots, as well as machines have not been mentioned in the Italian press. The average Italian, from reading his paper, would get the idea that France and Russia are openly supplying the Loyalists with arms and munitions.

Italy continues officially to maintain an attitude of neutrality. But the man-on-the-street knows that Italy is quietly sending men and material to Spain. This information he gets from the grape-vine; distribution of news which is not permitted to appear in the Italian papers. He knows it is true because his friend, Signor X, an air pilot, has quietly disappeared from Rome and now writes to his family from Spain. There are many such families in Rome receiving letters from Spain.

Mr. Average Italian was shrewd enough to guess that Italy and Germany recognised the Franco Government because they wished to give Franco additional support to speed up the conclusion of the war.

£30,000 TO FIGHT DISEASE

Government's Gift for Research CHEMO-THERAPY INSTITUTE

The announcement that the British Government will give £30,000 towards the establishment of a new institute of chemo-therapy—in which new artificial drugs will be made and their influence on disease tested—was made by Mr. Neville Chamberlain, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, at the anniversary dinner of the Royal Society of Claridge's Hotel, recently.

Both the Medical Research Council and the Department of Scientific and Industrial Research, Mr. Chamberlain stated, had urged the foundation of such an institution.

"I believe," he added, "that we shall be starting something of which it is difficult to-day to foresee all the possibilities."

THE INSTITUTE'S AIMS

The new institute, Professor Mellanby explained, is likely to be established at Mill Hill, where the Council has already laboratories. It will deal, as have German scientists, with the systematic production and testing of new anti-malarial drugs—but its medical aims will be very much more general than those of the German Institute.

The biggest hope, Professor Mellanby suggested, lay in the production of artificial drugs which would have some influence against bacterial disease. The successful use of the chemical "red protosil" against puerperal fever had, he suggested, established this possibility.

Mr. Chamberlain also indicated that the Government had, within the past two years, increased their expenditure on research in the interests of defence to £3,800,000 a year—an increase of £1,300,000.

Sir William Bragg, President of the Society, pointed out that research was being more and more relied upon as a means to human betterment, and expressed the opinion that one of the most encouraging features of the present time was the fact that social science was just beginning to be "a real thing."

PRISON FOR MAN WHO ONCE OWNED £20,000 STARTED AS MESSENGER BOY

A man who had risen from messenger boy to own £20,000 was sent to prison for 18 months at the Manchester Assizes recently for the fraudulent conversion of £1,795. The money was the bulk of an estate for which he was trustee.

He was Edmund Ogden, aged 70, coal merchant and formerly a mill owner, of Smyth Bridge, Littleborough, Lancashire. It was stated that he had been a member of the grand jury in the court in which he was sentenced.

"It is a painful duty to have to sentence a man of your age," said Mr. Justice Lawrence.

mitted to appear in the Italian papers. He knows it is true because his friend, Signor X, an air pilot, has quietly disappeared from Rome and now writes to his family from Spain. There are many such families in Rome receiving letters from Spain.

Mr. Average Italian was shrewd enough to guess that Italy and Germany recognised the Franco Government because they wished to give Franco additional support to speed up the conclusion of the war.

There are some who think that offensive air action by itself may enable us to do so," General Kirke added, "but there is, I fear, nothing to show that air action alone will stop the advance of armies which themselves have powerful air forces."

"Neither have we any reason to believe that the indiscriminate bombing of the civilian population will cause a proud people to surrender."

Campbell Black—£4,736, No Will

Mr. Tom Campbell Black, the airman, who was killed at Liverpool on October 19 when his plane collided with an R.A.F. bomber, has left £4,736, 12s. 6d.

He died intestate. Letters of administration have been granted to his widow, Miss Florence Desmond.

EDWARDIAN

During the crisis in England many people showed their sympathy for King Edward VIII. In London this cyclist rode through the streets wearing the placard, The King Must Not Abdicate.

Ground Troops Still Vital In Warfare

"AIR FORCES ALONE NOT ENOUGH"

"If Franco takes Madrid, it will not be with his bombers, but with his ground troops."

General Sir Walter Kirke, Director-General of the Territorial Army, expressed this opinion recently at the distribution of prizes to the 23rd London Regiment (The East Surrey Regiment) at Clapham Junction.

Sir Walter was pointing out the essential part which the Army, Regular and Territorial, had to fill in our own fighting forces.

The huge armies which Continental nations were organising and equipping, he said, showed clearly that they had no exaggerated opinion of the decisive effect of air forces.

On the Territorial Army rested the responsibility for the ground air defences and the coast defences. These would come into action in advance of all other services of armies which was to gain time to mobilise our resources.

Passive defence would never preserve the British Empire, nor would it enable us to fulfil our engagements to France and Belgium, or any other obligations which we might accept under the Covenant of the League of Nations.

"There are some who think that offensive air action by itself may enable us to do so," General Kirke added, "but there is, I fear, nothing to show that air action alone will stop the advance of armies which themselves have powerful air forces."

"Neither have we any reason to believe that the indiscriminate bombing of the civilian population will cause a proud people to surrender."

ATLANTIC AIR SERVICE

Trials To Begin At Once

MAILS TO BE CARRIED NEXT AUTUMN

By VICTOR BURNETT.

I HAVE discovered the secret of Colonel Lindbergh's flying visit to Ireland.

It was one of a party that forged the last link in negotiations for a North Atlantic air service.

Other members of the party were Mr. G. E. Woods Humphrey, managing director of Imperial Airways, Juan Trippe, president of Pan-American Airways, America's biggest airline corporation, and J. C. Cooper, a vice president of the combine.

Colonel Lindbergh is Atlantic adviser to Pan-American, Imperial Airways and Pan-American Airways are to co-operate in running the Atlantic service.

The reason for the visit was to approve the site chosen for the final jumping-off place on this side.

It is at Killybegs, Co. Derry, a tiny village near a deserted bay on a desolate coast.

During the next five years a small town will spring up there, with hotel accommodation for passengers and a landing ground for land planes.

It will become one of the most important air junctions in the world—a station on the newest transport line.

AGREEMENT

The Lindbergh party reached complete agreement with de Valera about Irish representation in the combine and division of costs for upkeep of the base.

These were the only points holding up the new service.

Now they are settled regular Atlantic crossings will start almost immediately.

Big American Atlantic clippers will carry out a series of trial flights. They will not take passengers or mails at first.

The purpose of the trial flights is to get information about Atlantic flying weather and winds in both directions.

Mails will probably be carried next autumn. Passengers will be carried in 1938. It is estimated that the average time for the crossing will be between fourteen and nineteen hours.

Imperial Airways long-range high-speed boats will work on the trials as well.

One more has been added to the list of early civilisations which archaeologists must explore if they are to piece together the full history of man. It is that of the kingdom of the Mitanni, in the upper valley of the Habur, not far from the Turkish frontier of Northern Syria.

Although under Sumerian influence at an earlier period, it has been proved that at least during the period about 1800-1400 B.C. there was, in this isolated district of Asia, an independent and virile civilisation.

The discoverer is Mr. M. E. L. Mallowan, leader of an expedition to Chagar Bazar, which has been jointly sponsored by the British School of Archaeology in Iraq and the British Museum. Mr. Mallowan described his discoveries at the annual meeting of the Fund at Burlington House, London, recently.

ORGANISED MILITARY STATE

Among his conclusions were that the houses of Chagar Bazar at that period were solidly built of mud brick; their inhabitants were skilled in smelting copper, cast their own weapons, and were members of a well-organised military state. Horses bore elaborate trappings, and chariots were used in war.

There is evidence of contact with Egypt, and the kingdom of Mitanni must at this time, it is believed, have had control of the trade routes to the metal ores of Asia Minor, and particularly of Cappadocia.

A grain receipt among the discoveries is taken to represent some individual payment of rent or taxes, more than 3,000 years ago.

Mr. Mallowan is to continue his excavations in the coming season, seeking specially for further inscriptions. He will also excavate Tell Brak, described as the most important "mound" in the neighbourhood.

SCOTS PREFER EGGS AND BACON

MORE TRAIN "HOTELS"

During 1937 the London and North-Eastern Railway is to be added to its present stock eleven new restaurant cars, 15 new buffet cars, and two coaches of special design which will combine the prominent features of both classes of "travelling hotel."

In the past year 2,741,000 meals have been served on the 278 restaurant buffet-cars. It is found that 70 per cent. of the patrons prefer tea and 30 per cent. coffee. In the South tea is more popular.

Agreement Welcome

London, Jan. 4.
Both French and German authoritative spokesmen, and the press of both countries, welcome the Anglo-Italian agreement, which they describe as "a gentlemen's agreement," and also a model understanding, insofar as it tends to foster friendship without being directed against a third power.
The opinion is expressed that its spirit reaches beyond the local sphere of the Mediterranean.—Reuter.

CINEMA

"My Man Godfrey" is a gay debonair modern comedy, light as thistledown, madder and merrier than a million March hares mastering the multiplication table. This Universal laugh riot, starring William Powell and Carole Lombard, has its showing at the Queen's and Alhambra Theatres simultaneously, to-day.
The screen story relates the adventures of William Powell, portraying a butler in the delightfully dizzy Bullock family. One daughter, played by Carole Lombard, falls in love with him. Her sister tries to have him jailed. The maid falls in love with him, too. The mother likes him, but she has a parrot pet of her own. The fun gets faster and more furious every second, with laughs bursting like bombshells. The cast includes such excellent players as Alice Brady, Gail Patrick, Jean Dixon, Eugene Pallette, Alan Mowbray, Mischa Auer and Robert Light.
The picture was made by Gregory La Cava, one of Hollywood's foremost directors. "My Man Godfrey" is taken from the novel of the same name, written by the master of modern comedy, Eric Hatch. The screen play is the work of this brilliant humorist and of Morris Ryskind, noted author of such screen hits as "A Night at the Opera."

"Anthony Adverse"

The long-awaited Warner Bros. production of "Anthony Adverse," filmed from Hervey Allen's cyclopean novel, which boasts of 3,000,000 readers, is at the King's Theatre today, with Freddie March in the stellar role and Olivia de Havilland playing opposite him in the feminine lead. In dynamic action, intense drama, glamorous romance and thrilling adventure, probably no story was ever better fitted for screen material.
And Warner Bros. are said to have caught all the vividness, the fire and colour of the original and to have transmitted it to the film. The cast is a tremendous one in size and remarkable for the number of talented players, there being ninety-eight speaking parts, with 2,550 bit players and extras appearing. Besides March and Miss de Havilland, some of the more important players include Edmund Gwenn, Claude Rains, Anita Louise, Louis Hayward, Gale
Sondergaard, Stef Duna, Billy Mauch, Donald Woods, Alvin Tambore, Ralph Morgan, Henry O'Neill, Pedro de Cordoba, George E. Stone and Luis Alberni. Mervyn LeRoy directed.

"Things Are Looking Up"

Circus queen, tennis champion, schoolmistress, whatever it may be,
is all the same to Cicely Courtneidge in "Things Are Looking Up," now showing at the Majestic Theatre.
And all because her twin sister, mistress at a girls' college, falls in love and elopes with the all-time wrestler from the circus. As the sister is in direct succession for the position of head mistress, Cicely feels that her place must be kept warm until she returns. With the many complications—Cicely deals in inimitable fashion, assisted by such capable artists as Max Miller, William Gargan, Mark Lester, Judy Kelly and Henrietta Watson. Not only is "Things are Looking Up" excellent fun, but all-round family entertainment of outstanding appeal.
It is an uproarious feast of fun, rich in comedy and revealing as a gold-digger and fortune hunter. George Barber, veteran character actor who played his last screen role in "Spendthrift" as the crochety uncle of Fonda, is aided by Halliwell Hobbes,
Richard Carle and J. M. Kerrigan in poking the story with skilled
"comedy." "Spendthrift" was directed by Raoul Walsh from a screen play
by Walsh and Bert Hanlon, taken from an original by Eric Hatch.

"Spendthrift"

Top-notch entertainment, provided by some of the screen's best talent in a story neatly combining romance and humour, marks the new offering of the Star Theatre, Walter Wanger's
"Spendthrift," which is showing there to-day. Chief roles in the screen play of a millionaire youth who had to lose his fortune to find the right girl are carried by Henry Fonda, young Paramount star; Pat Paterson, petite ash-blond English actress who plays her first part under a new Wanger contract in the film, and Mary Brian, cast for the first time in her screen career as a vixenish
"heavy," in the role of a Southern belly who is revealed as a gold-digger and fortune hunter. George Barber, veteran character actor who played his last screen role in "Spendthrift" as the crochety uncle of Fonda, is aided by Halliwell Hobbes,
Richard Carle and J. M. Kerrigan in poking the story with skilled
"comedy." "Spendthrift" was directed by Raoul Walsh from a screen play
by Walsh and Bert Hanlon, taken from an original by Eric Hatch.

HONGKONG MISSION
INDUSTRIALISTS TO INSPECT WHAMPOA

Hongkong Chinese manufacturers have planned to make a combined visit to Canton at an early date for an investigation of the industrial situation in Kwangtung Province. In particular they will avail themselves of an invitation to inspect Whampoa, and acquaint themselves with the details of the scheme by which it is hoped to make it a deep-sea port.

The Kwangtung Government specially desires to interest overseas Chinese in the undertaking, and has been at considerable pains to circularise the necessary data prior to the project. Hongkong manufacturers and industrialists were sufficiently interested to send a questionnaire recently on the subject through the medium of their local Association.
The four questions asked in connection with the Whampoa scheme were:

- (1) What are the Provincial Government's intentions regarding land and water communications to and from Whampoa?
- (2) What area has been set aside for industrial centralisation?
- (3) The procedure to be followed in the application for and allotment of these industrial sites?
- (4) Would preferential Customs taxes be accorded for raw materials imported and manufactured articles exported?

To these queries, Mr. Yung Kwai-ching, Secretary to the Municipality, has sent the following answers:

- (1) The Hankow-Canton Railway, which will be linked up with Whampoa, will ensure land communication to all chief centres of China. It is also proposed to dredge the Whampoa channel to a depth permitting ocean steamers up to 10,000 tons to berth in the port.
- (2) Under consideration.
- (3) Procedure not yet fixed.
- (4) Matter for consideration by the Central Government, but merchants may be assured of its policy of national protection for native industries, and of its intention in all these matters to act only in accord with its desire to foster and develop such industries.

The Hongkong Mission to visit Whampoa will comprise some 20 leading business representatives of this Colony. It will wait until the Mayor of Canton, Mr. Tsang Yang-pu, who will accompany them on the proposed tour of Whampoa, has returned from Nanking.

SEAFORTH'S DUE TO-MORROW

The 1st Battalion of The Seaforth Highlanders is due in Hongkong tomorrow (Wednesday) at 8 a.m., aboard the troopship Lancashire, which will tie up on arrival at the Naval Dockyard, and not at the Kowloon wharf as stated yesterday.

TWO MORE VESSELS

Black Hill and Etrich. A spokesman to-day declared the Government intended to reserve to its own Navy the authority to take any action as regards the rights of British merchantmen.

Simultaneously, the spokesman confessed "anxiety" regarding the German retaliation policy in Spain and added that Britain was watching developments closely.

It was announced that (Sir Henry Chilton, British Ambassador in Spain, had vigorously protested against the stoppage of the Black Hill and it was intimated that an apology was expected.

The British commander of a destroyer in Cadiz had directly protested to the authorities there against the halting of the British steamer Etrich by Nationalist patrols and had demanded the prevention of such an occurrence, it was stated.—United

Protection Promise

L. don, Jan. 4.
Reporting protests which the British Government has caused to be made to the insurgent authorities in Spain regarding the recent incidents in which British ships had been involved, newspapers recall the statement made by the Foreign Secretary in the House of Commons on November 23 last that "His Majesty's ships will, should it prove necessary, protect British merchant ships on the high seas against interference by ships of either party engaged in the conflict in Spain, outside the three mile limit."

In the case of the steamer Black-hill, which was fired upon on New Year's Day while on passage in ballast from Bayona to Santander, the British Ambassador, Sir Henry Chilton, has been instructed to make a strong protest to the insurgent authorities at Burgos.

The Etrich, sailing from Haifa to Liverpool with a cargo of oranges, was ordered, on December 31, off Europe Point, Gibraltar, to heave to by an insurgent trawler. The master refused to show her papers. A British destroyer, on the news of interference with the Etrich reaching the authorities, proceeded to Cadiz and lodged with the insurgent naval command, a protest and request for assurances against recurrence of such incidents.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE
YESTERDAY

New York, Jan. 4.
S. C. & F. Wall Street Journal morning comment: Stocks weakened much less than auto shares, although the labour situation will affect both.
Brokers are of the opinion that there will be considerable switching into the so-called "commodity" stocks.
Bulls in rail equipments expect new business early this year. Wall Street expects continued switching, with some profit-taking and favours oil, building-shares and utilities to switch in.

S. C. & F. New York office cables: Stocks: The market appears to be making time, awaiting developments in the automobile strike situation and the expected message from President Roosevelt. Refined sugar has advanced by 20 points to 5 cents per pound. Bank clearings for the "Times Business Index" for the week was 109.6, as against 119.5 the revised index for last week and 95.3 for the same week of last year.

Cotton: The Government disposal plan, which involves the payment of 12 1/2 cents to producers, when the average market is 12 1/2 cents from February 1st to April 1st, with the amount of cotton to be disposed not stated, is not construed as particularly beneficial, but it is believed that this places a ceiling over the market and tends to stability. The threatened spread of the automobile strike, however, and the opening of Congress tomorrow, with many labour and industrial bills, may cause easiness.

Wheat: The market displays a firm undertone. Advances meet with profit-taking, but the world statistical position and foreign political situations dominate the situation.

Corn: Producers are selling on advances only. There is no pressure and, in the absence of any country movement, the market is firm.
Rubber: The automobile strike situation is discouraging activity on the part of buyers. There is no indication of a settlement and a spread of the strike is probable. The whole outlook is disquieting. The reported six months licensing of British exports instead of three months, the expected quota average of 77 1/2%, and the fact that Eastern stocks will be exported immediately are less actual market factors at present than the automobile strike situations. Malayan shipments for December totalled 39,749 tons.

THERE WILL BE NO WAR IN EUROPE

The lines of communication of the great army Italy must keep in that country are dependent on Britain's control of the Suez Canal, by her unchallenged sea power.

Furthermore, Italy's economic situation is very weak. Even the expenses of the Abyssinian campaign have seriously embarrassed her financial position.

Russia is fully occupied with her industrial reconstruction and with the immense task of building up a collectivist State in face of tremendous difficulties. The Russian Army would not doubt be formidable fighting in defence of its own soil, but even Stalin would not dare to use it for invading any other country. His dictatorship would be threatened.

This threat applies, indeed, to all dictatorships. The dictator knows that war is a gamble and that losing it would mean the end of his rule.

German Handicaps
I have left Germany to the last. In Germany the economic situation is very weak.

There is great difficulty in purchasing raw materials in Germany even for the programme of rearmament. The people have to go short of necessities, the currency situation is dangerous, and unbiased observers describe the German home situation as about on a par with the situation in 1916 when the blockade was beginning to have its full effects.

Germany has no allies in Europe on whom she can depend.

The German Army is in process of reorganisation, and is short of trained officers and non-commissioned officers, because of the rapid expansion. The Navy is still comparatively weak, and there are no overseas bases.

For all these reasons, therefore, German aggression as a deliberate act can be ruled out.

If we all keep our heads and try to remove such legitimate grievances as exist, there will be no European war.

DEGREE DAY AT UNIVERSITY

SIR WM. HORNELL LEAVING

With all the traditional and colourful ceremony connected with the occasion, the University of Hongkong yesterday afternoon held its 28th. Congregation at which degrees were conferred on the graduates in the faculties of Arts, Medicine and Engineering.

H.E. the Governor, Sir Andrew Caldecott, Chancellor of the University, opened the Congregation and later conferred the degrees; while Sir William Hornell, Vice-Chancellor, made his farewell speech at the last Congregation at which he will be present before leaving for home on retirement.

In his address to the Congregation, the Chancellor drew attention to the regrettable lack of considerable endowments being made to the University during the year. In connection with finances he said that he had decided to appoint a small committee to investigate the financial position of the University, to enquire whether any changes are advisable in staffing, personnel, or salary scales, and to tender any other advice or suggestion for the future of the University.

The Hon. Mr. N. L. Smith, the Hon. Sir Shouson Chow, Mr. J. R. Masson and Mr. A. Morse will be invited to serve on the Committee.

Paying a tribute to Sir William Hornell, Sir Andrew Caldecott said he desired to conclude his speech with the word "Goodbye," as had the Vice-Chancellor, but would merely say, "Thank you."

Sir William Hornell in his address drew attention to the successes which had been achieved by sons and daughters of the Alma Mater during the past year, and the brilliant work done by Professor Ride, whose work on human physiology and pathology had won for him the right to supply the University of Oxford's degree of Doctor of Medicine.

Sir William also mourned the losses suffered by the University during the year by the death of number of its supporters and brilliant graduates and drew attention to the distressing lack of playing fields for the undergraduates and the lack of a real connecting link between this university and English universities.

Tea was served in the University grounds from 3.45 p.m., and at 5 p.m. the Proclamation, including members of the Court, Council, Senate and Faculties of the University, entered the Great Hall, and the members took their places on the dais.

While the Procession entered the Great Hall, the Band of the 2nd. Buffs, The Buffs, The Buffs, played the Processional March.

The Graduates
The following received the degree of Bachelor of Medicine and Bachelor of Surgery:

THE BLUE BIRD MAN

TALK TO HONGKONG CHILDREN

The Blue Bird Man of Formosa is arriving in Hongkong to-day on a short visit.

He is Mr. Clarence Griffin, F.R.S., of Taikoku, one of the few white men who visits the head-hunters in Formosa. Before he knew the hunters, Mr. Griffin invariably took with him on his inland trips, a handful of blue birds. When he met the hunters, he pretended to find a blue bird and they, so amazed at his actions and inquisitive as children, made friends with him to discover the secret of blue bird hunting.

Many visitors to Taihoku last summer will recall Mr. Griffin who, in a kindly and generous manner, escorted all strangers round the town and country showing them the various interesting sights.

Over sixty years of age, Mr. Griffin has been a resident for some time at Taihoku where he lectures at the University. When a baby, he was taken by his parents to Yokohama. He lived there for many years, and was one of the lucky few to escape from the terrible earthquake in 1923.

In Yokohama, he is known as the Rickshawman's Friend. This title was earned when he decided to save all the money he might have spent on tobacco and liquor and with it to build a shelter for poor rickshamen. By this deed, he earned the grateful thanks of these men.

On Tuesday, January 12, an attractive talk for children on "The Aborigines of Formosa" is to be given by Mr. Griffin at the Helena May Institute at 5 p.m. The talk will be illustrated by lantern slides. Admission to all children is free, that for adults being one dollar.

REV. FATHER ROBERT EXPECTED IN HONGKONG THIS MONTH

A former well-known figure in Hongkong will return this month when the Very Rev. Father L. Robert, Superior General of the French Foreign Missions, arrives here on his way to the Eucharistic Congress in Manila.

For 37 years Father Robert was in the Far East, and from 1904 to 1926 was Procurator of the Missions in Hongkong. In that time he figured largely in the financial and business life of the Colony, his abilities being valued by many companies which he served as a director. In Shanghai he was a member of the French Municipal Council for 10 years, and it was largely due to his energy that the new French Concession was built there. He is commemorated there by the Rue Pere Robert, named after him.

Possessed of unusual financial ability, he was one of the original directors of the Kowloon Tong Development Co., besides being associated with several other local business concerns.

Father Robert was last in Hongkong in 1926, when he passed through the Colony on an inspection tour while on his way to the Eucharistic Congress in Sydney.

ANOTHER ASPIRANT FOR COLONIES

Poland has now joined those nations who are seeking more elbow-room. Organised by a political organisation, a "Colonial Day" was recently held for the purpose of impressing upon the people the idea that the Colonial problem has become one of primary importance to the State. It is claimed that as Poland, like other countries, is becoming industrialised, she must have access to raw materials, whilst markets must be found for her industrial products in order to provide work for the unemployed. A further demand is for "free territories overseas"—whatever that may mean—in order to relieve over-population in the Polish cities. These demands are put forward in a manner which is said to brook of no delay, it being declared that for the sake of the peace of Europe satisfaction on the points raised must be secured in the near future. Nothing is said, however, as to how the demands are to be met; neither is there any hint as to where these colonies are to be obtained. The economic aspect of the question, so far as the running of the colonies is concerned, also appears to have been overlooked. After all, colonies are an expensive luxury, especially in the early days, when the foundations have to be laid for future development. There is more than a suspicion in some quarters that this new Polish organisation is largely actuated by a feeling that as other nations are clamouring for more territory, Poland should also come into the picture. A further suggestion is that the issue is being raised mainly for the purpose of diverting the people's minds from other and more immediate discontents, whilst one commentator sees in the move the prelude to an effort to get rid of some of the millions of Jews who live in Poland. Whatever the actual truth may be, it is difficult to see that any very strong case can be made out for Polish expansion overseas. The question of free access to raw materials is admittedly one of considerable concern to industrial countries.

But the more fundamental questions of what to do about the clauses of the constitution which limit Federal power to inter-State commerce and which prohibit the confiscation of property "without due process of law," under which most New Deal legislation was nullified, can more readily be dealt with by naming a more liberal court than by constitutional amendment.

Landon charged Roosevelt with intending to re-establish another N.R.A., and challenged him to deny it. Roosevelt's reply was evasive. He listed the objectives of the N.R.A.—better wages, shorter hours, the abolition of child labour and the reduction of "chiselling"—but he also stated that he was going to fight monopoly. Now the essence of the N.R.A. was that business in granting concessions to labour was given the suspension of the anti-trust but it has yet to be proved that it is impossible to secure these raw materials in any other way than by actual acquisition of colonies. The wiser course would appear to be by the method of trade agreements which result in the removal or modification of existing barriers to trade. There have been many examples lately of reciprocal treaties along these lines, and the more general this policy becomes, the greater will be the world prosperity which will result therefrom.

Now for it, Roosevelt

By
Raymond Gram
Swing

VOTERS in the United States have told President Roosevelt to lead four years more, and lead he will. Never has a more peremptory mandate been given for personal leadership in a democratic country. To-morrow, President Roosevelt will be inaugurated for his second term of office, which will last until January 6, 1941.

Roosevelt himself refrained during the campaign from being explicit about his plans if re-elected. He contented himself by saying he would carry on as he had begun.

His first task will be political, as all who know him intimately testify. He will put the Democratic Party's house in order, cut down redundant office holders and name a stronger Cabinet. His ambition is to make the Democratic Party the ruling party of the United States for many terms to come. He wants it associated in the public mind with prosperity, and to leave the Republicans associated with depression.

For his political programme one must look to what Roosevelt was unable to finish in his first term.

First of all is the constitutional issue. He will meet it in the largest sense by the appointment of Justices to the Supreme Court who are sympathetic to the New Deal outlook. In four years enough members of the court will have retired voluntarily or by death to give Roosevelt his chance of amending the constitution by interpretation without having to carry the question to the people.

THERE may be a specific amendment permitting States to enact Minimum Wage legislation. Even Landon spoke for that in accepting nomination.

But the more fundamental questions of what to do about the clauses of the constitution which limit Federal power to inter-State commerce and which prohibit the confiscation of property "without due process of law," under which most New Deal legislation was nullified, can more readily be dealt with by naming a more liberal court than by constitutional amendment.

Landon charged Roosevelt with intending to re-establish another N.R.A., and challenged him to deny it. Roosevelt's reply was evasive. He listed the objectives of the N.R.A.—better wages, shorter hours, the abolition of child labour and the reduction of "chiselling"—but he also stated that he was going to fight monopoly. Now the essence of the N.R.A. was that business in granting concessions to labour was given the suspension of the anti-trust but it has yet to be proved that it is impossible to secure these raw materials in any other way than by actual acquisition of colonies. The wiser course would appear to be by the method of trade agreements which result in the removal or modification of existing barriers to trade. There have been many examples lately of reciprocal treaties along these lines, and the more general this policy becomes, the greater will be the world prosperity which will result therefrom.

laws. So if a new N.R.A. is coming it will not be like the old one.

Indeed, the old one taught Roosevelt a lesson. It quickly turned into a business bureaucracy imbued with anything but New Deal philosophy.

Another unfinished job left over from the first administration is housing. Here the President had already forecast a bigger programme.

HE had been impressed by foreign criticisms of the dilatory way in which the United States tackled the housing programme. Slum clearance had gone forward at a snail's pace. Washington had been caught between the desire to do a thorough task and the fear of taking away business from private builders.

The biggest trouble around the corner for Roosevelt is Labour.

John Lewis tells him bluntly that he was elected because organised Labour and unorganised Labour voted for him. During his first term Roosevelt did open the door for Labour to help itself; but on many occasions he whittled away the rights of Labour as defined by New Deal laws and regulations. Now he is going to have to be the leader for Labour if he hopes to keep the Democratic Party permanently in power.

That means that the weight and sympathy of the Federal Government must be behind Labour's fight to unionise mass production industries. Roosevelt's second term may go down to posterity as the greatest era of strikes in our history. If the Supreme Court throws out the Wagner Law under which Labour's rights are guaranteed

THERE WILL BE NO WAR IN EUROPE

By LORD STRABOLGI

I meet men and women of many nationalities, and I find them very apprehensive about the possibility of an outbreak of war in the near future.

The farther eastward one goes into the Continent of Europe the more people seem obsessed by the fear of war; and, indeed, many of them do not ask whether there will be a great war, but when will it break out.

I believed that these apprehensions are ill-founded; that there need not be a war in Europe in the near future, and that there will not be a war. I have a number of reasons for this belief.

One, which is psychological, is that the Great War came like a bolt from the blue. The majority of people in all countries were thinking about other things—their businesses, their pleasures, their sport—and the terrible event was unexpected.

To-day people are talking about war and therefore thinking about it and what it means. If war does come it will not come as a surprise, and it will not be possible for statesmen to drift into war.

To reinforce this opinion, let us examine the immediate cause of the Great War. It was the assassination of the heir to one of the great thrones of Europe in a provincial town in Bosnia. The forces gathered, tensions began, and the awful result occurred in August 1914.

Storms That Have Passed

In the last few years there have been several serious events, much and business is seriously affected by paralysing strikes, even Roosevelt's inventiveness will be strained.

Roosevelt is expected to overhaul the whole Federal tax machinery during his second term. He has already promised to revise the new tax on corporate surpluses, and promised that no new taxation will be necessary to balance the budget.

LEGISLATION putting an end to the issue of bonds interest on which is exempt from taxation is to be expected. More "soak the rich" taxation is unlooked for, but certainly laws will be passed stopping up the trapdoors by which the rich now evade taxation.

The Cabinet will be reconstructed. Mr. Hull, Secretary of State, is sure of his post. His trade treaties actually became issues in the campaign. So the Roosevelt victory endorses a policy favouring two-way international trade.

Hull, who came into the Cabinet as a stately nineteenth-century idealist, is now the most popular personality in Roosevelt's circle.

Wallace will be Secretary for Agriculture. He raised farm incomes by fifteen hundred million pounds and talked more sense about economics than anybody else in the administration. The President has a strong personal affection for him.

THE Secretary to the Treasury will be Morgenthau. He is Roosevelt's personal representative. By profession a gentleman farmer, he is without financial experience. But he is utterly dependable as a spokesman for the White House, whereas anyone taken from the business world might not be.

All other Cabinet posts are in doubt. Secretary Ickes probably will continue in office. He is a trouble-maker because of his lack of tact. But he is a New Dealer in every pore and devoted to the President.

cause the preservation of their homes will only be a matter of chance.

Unaggressive Nations

There is a third reason against war—that the countries which are supposed to be the most aggressive are the poorest.

A short campaign can be fought on credit, so to speak, without money and wealth in the form of a store of goods. But now the general staffs have learnt the lesson that no war is likely to be a short war.

This terrible business in Spain, for example is expected to last for another year at least, and I have even heard two years stated as its possible duration.

Somebody has to start a war and remember that all means of conciliation will be mobilised at the first threat. We can leave out the smaller nations. None of them would dare to be aggressive on its own account. But consider the Great Powers.

We can rule out ourselves, and I think it is fair to say that every other country rules us out too. All parties in this country are united in wishing to avoid war.

France is in much the same situation. The French have no aggressive designs; they want to be left in peace—their days of expansion and conquest are over, and this fact is also recognised by everyone.

Roosevelt's second term may be the greatest era of strikes in U. S. history.

Six Die In Mass Murder In Backwoods MOTHER AND CHILD CLUBBED

By A Special Correspondent

Edmonton (Alberta), December 18.

Many volunteers of different nationalities are fighting in the Spanish Civil War. The picture shows an English girl wearing the militia uniform and carrying her kitbag, before leaving Barcelona to join the loyalists.

ROYAL MOUNTED POLICE have just investigated a grim series of murders, in which six people have lost their lives, in a lonely settlement on the Northern Alberta Railway to Peace River. The tragedies are the result of the brooding jealousy of a section foreman, Carl Schwes, who was displaced from his job by one of his victims.

BOYS WANT TO REACH THE MOON FIRST EXPERIMENTS WITH PENNY ROCKETS

"WIRELESS? Nonsense! The fellow's crazy. We ought to have him examined."

"Television? Ridiculous! Never heard of such ramblings."

These are the things that scoffers said a few years ago when radio and television were first spoken of.

Now it's a trip to the moon that scoffers are holding up to ridicule.

But no amount of scoffing can damp the enthusiasm—nor the gunpowder—of young Malcolm Wade, of the newly formed Manchester Interplanetary Society.

He has practically convinced me that moon-rocketing isn't so far away after all (writes a London correspondent).

He has almost convinced his mother already, and that's two-thirds of the battle.

There's only one drawback to Malcolm's enthusiasm—probably to the relief of Mrs. Wade—that is an Act which forbids liquid fuels being used in rocket research.

Malcolm is 10, six feet, and lives in Portland Road, Prestwich. Over piles of books in his own "den" he told me the story of the birth of the interplanetary society.

"I and another boy, Eric Burgess, were the first two to work out the idea," he said.

"Both of us were terribly keen to discover a rocket which would really reach the stratosphere, and so far we are doing fine."

"NEARLY BLEW OUR HEADS OFF"

"First we bought penny rockets robbed them of their charges and put them in our own rockets, several at a time. They nearly blew our heads off."

"Then, as we progressed, we made our own charges, and by the time we were fairly proficient other boys joined."

"We improved the shape of our rockets, made properly sealed cradles, and gradually sent them further and further into the sky. Our highest rocket so far reached 400 feet."

"Now we are getting greater rockets. The latest will have an all-metal hull, and will be some three feet high."

These future spacemen brave all weathers, stand in fog, ice or snow.

Three people walking beside the track at the little wayside station of Tieland, 100 miles north of this city, a desolate spot in the backwoods, heard a single shot, and when the police raced up in answer to their alarm, they found these dead:—

Carl Schwes himself, a bachelor, aged 40; Carl Nelson, section foreman, aged 30; Mrs. Alma Nelson, aged 23; Edward Nelson, their three-year-old son; John Marcinuk, a section hand; George Reul, aged 55, a neighbour of the Nelsons.

With Rifle Butt

Schwes clubbed Mrs. Nelson and her child with his rifle butt in the absence of her husband, whom he had shot in a toolhouse as he crouched over his work. Marcinuk had been shot as he sat eating in his shack. Reul's body was found on his bed, where he had been sitting.

Schwes was discovered on the railroad track with two rifles beside him. He had shot himself through the head.

One of the three people who heard the single shot, apparently that which killed Schwes, was a sister of Mrs. Nelson.

Decree—Then Reconciled

Wolverhampton, Dec. 24.

"GOOD HOPE" is the name on the door of a house in Wrottesley road, Tottenham, Staffs.

The name was given by Mr. and Mrs. Philip Keith Saunders when they moved into the house last May after being divorced in January and reunited a month later.

To-day the husband who was respondent in the suit applied to Sir Boyd Merriam in the Divorce Court, for a rescission of the decree granted to his wife, who had now returned to him.

The President, saying he would do nothing whatever "to discourage this excellent application," granted it and congratulated Mr. Saunders.

Mrs. Saunders said to-night: "We both realised we had made a mistake and so we agreed to make another start."

to see their rockets fizzle into the sky—yet who knows but they will be the last to laugh?

Malcolm says he is going to be passenger in the first man-size rocket to clear the ground.

But Malcolm's mother, generally tolerant, may have something to say about that!

9 Boys Await Execution

AMONG 23 SING SING CONDEMNED
New York, Dec. 30.

Nine boys, all minors under 21 years of age, are among the twenty-three in the Sing Sing death-house, awaiting execution during the week of January 4. Never in the prison's history have so many minors awaited execution.

Youngest of the nine is James Sullivan, 17 years of age on August 10, who, on February 20 last, according to testimony introduced at the trial, entered the dry goods store of Herman S. Meyerson in Brooklyn, beat him into unconsciousness with a bowling pin, and took $9.00 from the cash drawer. At the time of the murder, Sullivan was a student in the Richmond High School in Brooklyn, where he was known as "Little Dillinger" because he read extensively of John Dillinger, the slain outlaw. Sullivan attributed the crime to a craving for money.

Also awaiting execution on January 7 is Wentworth Springer, 17, five months older than Sullivan, who, with Lawrence Jackson, 18, and Robert Talferro, 19, was convicted of murder in New York.

Other minors awaiting death are Salvatore 13, of New York; Frederick Fowler, 19, of New York; Henry Stevens, 19, of Mattville, New York; Charles A. Waterbury, 20, of Euclid, New York; and Charles Ham, 20, of Baltimore. Stevens and Waterbury were convicted of shooting Charles Salisbury, President of the National Bank of Lacrosse, New York, during an attempted robbery.

Scota, one of the minors, was involved in a group that provided the most sensational murder of those committed by the present inhabitants of the death-house. On September 2, six young men, including Scota, attempted to rob the Avenue X station of the B.M.T. Coney Island subway line. Edwin Eposilio, aged 22, the subway collector, was transferring the day's receipts from the station; and, when ordered to raise his hands, reached for his gun and was slain. The men involved in this murder, convicted and sentenced to electrocution in Sing Sing, are Scota, Sam Kimmel, 21, Eugene Bruno, 23, Joseph Bologna, who fired the fatal shot, 24, Dominick Zizzo, 25, and Theodore D. Donno, 31. This is the first time in more than 25 years that so many persons have been sentenced to death here for one murder.

Robbery has been behind the murders committed by most of the occupants of Sing Sing's death house at the present time. In the County Court in Brooklyn, within the past twelve months, of ten individuals convicted of murder in the first degree, all but one participated in the ruthless killing of their victims while engaged in robbery. ## BRADMAN IN FINE FORM Australia Piling Up Enormous Lead Bradman and Fingleton are placing Australia in an impregnable position in the third Test match, being played at Melbourne. At the lunch interval, they had taken the score to 252 for 5, Bradman being only four short of his century, whilst Fingleton had 57 to his credit. Soon after the resumption, Bradman reached his century. He is now 103, whilst Fingleton is 59, the score being 261 for 5. Both batsmen continue to defy the English bowlers.

When the match was resumed this morning, Australia were 194 for 5, and shortly after the lunch interval they were 385 ahead of England, with five good wickets still in hand.

Bradman is in fine form, and only the splendid fielding of the English team is keeping down the rate of his scoring.

PLAY RESUMES
Melbourne, Jan. 5.
The Test match was resumed this morning in the presence of 40,000 spectators, the Australians being 194 for 5 overnight, with Fingleton and Bradman still at the wickets.

The weather was cool and cloudy, with bursts of occasional sunshine. The wicket will probably be slow and easy. Early on, Fingleton added a single, making his score a round 40, whilst Bradman did likewise, bringing his total to 57. The score was thus 196 for 5.

The 200 was signalled after 252 minutes' batting, while the partnership between Bradman and Fingleton had yielded 100 in 107 minutes.

Fingleton at this stage had scored 52, giving a dour display. He reached 50 in 158 minutes, his score including one boundary.

BRADMAN BRILLIANT
Bradman was now 80. He had shown fine form, with perfect timing of his strokes and good footwork. At this stage, Fingleton and Bradman had put on a further 37 runs this morning, the score being 231 for 5.

A further 21 runs were added before lunch, Bradman and Fingleton being still unbeaten. The score at the interval was 252 for 5, Fingleton being 57 and Bradman 96, both not out.

The 250 was signalled after 323 minutes' play. Fingleton at this time had become more aggressive, with forcing drives. When he had scored 57, he gave a chance in the slips.

Bradman is playing delightful cricket, often glancing to leg. Only the splendid fielding of the English team is keeping down his rate of scoring.—Reuter.

STRIKE LOSING GROUND MOVE TO DEFEAT JOSEPH CURRAN

New York, Jan. 4.
Several sources, including strike leaders and shipowners as well as striking seamen, to-day said that the strikers had begun a movement to overthrow Mr. Joseph Curran, the Chairman of the Seamen's Defence Committee, and permit the strikers to return to work.

They are unanimously agreed that the strike is rapidly losing ground, while their funds are exhausted.

One leader said that it was planned to vote at the mass meeting on Wednesday whether or not they should resume work. He said that it would affect the ships on the East coast only.

Another said that the Communist influence had caused many to abandon the strike.

It is reported that, with the exception of 2,000 West coast seamen who are stranded in New York, only 200 or 300 Eastern seamen are striking, despite the headquarters' claims to 2,000 registered pickets.—United Press.

GERMAN "BLOCKADE" TO BE RESISTED

Nazi Volunteer Pilots Taken Attempting Bilbao Raid

BERLIN'S ATTITUDE HARDENING

Rebel Fleet Ordered On Alert For Any Developments

(SPECIAL TO "TELEGRAPH") Hendaye, Jan. 5.

Twenty Spanish Government trawlers, fully armed, have departed from Bilbao, Gijon, Santander, Bermeo and Santona under orders to fire on all ships threatening to attack Spanish or neutral ships, and to protect these vessels against the rebel and German vessels patrolling the high seas as well as the Spanish three-mile limit waters. They will convoy all coastal steamers not carrying war materials.

The departure of these 20 armed craft have brought grave fears of serious incidents. It is noteworthy that the insurgent Northern Fleet is concentrated at Zumaya and Pasajes, while there are British and German warships at present in the Gulf of Gascony.

Meanwhile, General Francisco Franco, rebel commander-in-chief, has ordered his Biscay fleet to shell any suspected ship failing to halt and submit its papers to examination, and has instructed three rebel cruisers to refuel at Ceuta and prepare for immediate departure under sealed orders.—United Press.

GERMAN RAIDERS

Hendaye, Jan. 5.
German planes from Victoria attempted to bomb Bilbao to-day, but loyalists downed one of the attackers, from which two pilots leaped and descended with parachutes. Both were Germans, and were captured and imprisoned.

It was discovered that the men were carrying permits, signed by General Francisco Franco.

Two other German planes were shot down in the vicinity of Villa Real.

The Bilbao Government has protested against the use of German materials and pilots in the war being waged "on Basque civilians."—United Press.

GERMAN ATTITUDE HARDENS

Berlin, Jan. 5.
Two new incidents have hardened the German policy against the Spanish Lefists, according to a communiqué issued to-day.

The first is the report that two large trawlers, under the Spanish Government, on December 20, fired on a German merchantman, the Pluto, 21 miles off Bilbao.

The second incident concerns the execution of the German, Lothar Guedde, in the Bilbao area in November.

The communiqué explained that the commander of the Pluto had belatedly reported the incident. It added that news of Guedde's death had just been received.

A spokesman announced that the first incident seems to indicate that the Lefists are proceeding specially against Germans, and said this fact considerably aggravates the present situation.

GUEDDE A HERO
The communiqué adds that Guedde died a hero, shouting farewell "Hells" for Hitler, Germany and Spain before the rifles of his executioners silenced him. His execution is described as "a cowardly murder."

Officials, meanwhile, seem confident that Germany has taken the right attitude regarding the detention of the cargo of the Palos and the single Spanish passenger, the ship single Spanish passenger, the ship carried. (The Lefists seized these when they arrested the German ship, and subsequently released her, last week.)

REBEL RAIDERS BOMB MADRID

Inflict Casualties On Civilian Population

AMERICAN NATIONALS NEAR TO CENTRE OF ATTACK

Madrid, January 4.
After a heavy artillery bombardment which lasted throughout the night, five insurgent bombers flew over Madrid at noon to-day and dropped two bombs on a building, formerly the German school. Casualties are unknown at present, but they may be heavy, as the building was packed with people.

The former German school is situated in the district offered by General Francisco Franco, the rebel commander-in-chief, as a neutral zone. There has been much comment on the fact that this is the first time since the siege of Madrid began that this district has been subjected to bombardment. It is suggested that the attack is the immediate sequel to the departure of the British Embassy from Madrid, though it must be admitted that the Government in Valencia never agreed to the establishment of any neutral zone as it declared that such an arrangement would favour the richer inhabitants to the prejudice of the poorer.—Reuter Bulletin Service.

Fearful Casualties

Paris, Jan. 4.
Reports from Madrid state that there have been many civilian casualties in the air raid at noon to-day. Fifty bodies have already been taken to the morgue in one district alone. The havoc is said to be terrible.

(This is the first indication that bombs were dropped elsewhere than in the region of the former German School. It now appears that explosives were dropped in many sections of the city as the planes roared in a circle over the capital.)

Bombs were dropped on a queue, mostly consisting of women, outside a grocer's establishment. They turned the pavement to a slumbers. Many have been taken to hospital with horrible injuries, their limbs severed from their bodies.

Three big bombs wrecked half the palace of the Duke of Santa Elena, cousin of ex-King Alfonso, where nine persons were killed and 15 wounded.—Reuter.

NATIONALIST COMMUNIQUE

(The following translation of the Nationalist headquarters' broadcast from Tenerife, received in Hongkong at 7 a.m. to-day, was made expressly for the Hongkong Telegraph.)
Tenerife, Jan. 4.

Official communiqué from General Francisco Franco to the Radio Club Tenerife:

"Madrid: The Nationalist troops attacked Villanueva de la Canada and Boadilla del Monte and other positions of less importance to-day, inflicting heavy losses upon the defenders and capturing two Russian tanks and a great quantity of equipment. Lefist dead on the field were mostly Frenchmen and included a number of high officers."

Jeon—Government troops, retreating in this sector, have left behind 207 dead, 10 machine-guns, 10 sub-machine-guns, 200 rifles, 83 trucks, loaded with war equipment and, in the Forcuera sector, 40 guns of various calibres.

Nationalist troops captured the village of Corbalan.

Other sectors are quiet.

The insurgent air force lost one scout plane in the fighting around Madrid to-day, where bombers were active. Three Government aircraft were driven down.

Narrow Escape

Madrid, Jan. 5.
Huddled in the Embassy, 31 Americans heard the shock of rebel bombs which caused Madrid's streets to run with blood yesterday. Many of the bombs dropped close to the Embassy. It was one of the worst raids in the war.

Sixty are known to be dead and 240 wounded. All the Americans escaped.

NATIONS BLUNTLY WARNED

TO KEEP HANDS OFF BRITISH SHIPPING DANGEROUS TENSION

London, Jan. 5.
Mr. Anthony Eden, Foreign Secretary, has returned from his holiday and is faced with an anxious task in eliminating the dangers of danger which have appeared in the Spanish situation since Christmas.

Notable among the dangers are the molestation of British ships on the high seas, the landing of Italian volunteers on the eve of the signing of the Anglo-Italian gentlemen's agreement, and the menacing development of the Palos affair.

The Daily Telegraph's diplomatic correspondent understands that the British Cabinet intends that its warship, the Koenigsberg, should also be ordered to General Franco, which would be a clear foreign Power which certainties thoughts of entering into an open alliance with either side in Spain, though Britain would, in any case, maintain absolute neutrality, at the same time affording all requisite protection to British shipping.

London is discouraged, says the correspondent, at the landing of Italian volunteers after Britain had urgently requested the Powers, including Italy, to prevent the flow of volunteers to Spain.

Other correspondents discuss the complications earnestly.

The New Chronicle urges the Spanish Government to submit the Palos affair to international arbitration, in order to pave the way to relief of the tension which is daily growing more dangerous.—Reuter.

British Protest

London, Jan. 4.
Great Britain has lodged a strong protest with the Nationalist Government in Spain with respect to the action taken against the steamers Black Hill and Etrich. A spokesman to-day declared the Government intended to reserve to its own Navy the authority to take any action as regards the rights of British merchantmen.

Simultaneously, the spokesman confessed anxiety regarding the German retaliation policy in Spain and added that Britain was watching developments closely.

It was announced that Sir Henry Chilton, British Ambassador in Spain, had vigorously protested against the stopping of the Black Hill and it was (Continued on Page 4.)

INSURGENTS TO FIRE IF SUSPICIOUS SHIPS REFUSE TO HEAVE TO

Paris, Jan. 4.

It is learned from Casa Blanca that wireless messages sent out this morning from Seville, Tetuan and Tenerife instructed insurgent naval forces to fire on any suspicious vessel refusing to heave to for purposes of search.

The Tetuan station ordered the three insurgent cruisers lying at Ceuta to be ready to sail.

At the general headquarters at Tetuan it is considered that big issues are about to be decided at sea.

Seven vessels of unknown nationality, but believed to be Spanish Government ships, have been brought to Ceuta and men are working night and day arming them with small guns and machine-guns.—Reuter.

STOP PRESS

Page For Women

Jane
Gordon
Says

Of all the questions that I have to answer in connection with beauty, to do with hairdressing the most difficult are those styles. Describing clothes, cosmetics, or beauty treatments is a child's play compared with hair fashions.

Hairdressing has changed so much lately. It is no longer fashionable to wear your hair parted on one side with corrugated waves over the crown of your head and dozens of little round sausage curls at the back. The smartest women now wear their hair brushed absolutely smoothly over the crown of their heads, in most cases without even a suggestion of a wave.

that lie close against the forehead and the back of the neck. No matter where you wear your parting, your hair must be brushed away from your temples.

If you part your hair on one side you may have one or even two flat curls rolled back from your forehead. The hair is cut short as it would be for a fringe, only instead of brushed down it is brushed back into a roll or one or two curls.

The hair is brushed away from the temples, arranging the curls or the roll to leave the lower part of the ear exposed.

Some women part their hair in the centre and arrange one or two curls softly brushed on each side of the parting. Fringes that come down over the forehead are now worn curled.

SOME of London's smartest young married women have their hair brushed completely flat like a skull cap, with the one roll of hair brushed high up off the forehead and continued all round the back of the head. This makes the face look very hard, but it is considered smart.

Where soft, flat curls are worn at the back of the head they are usually arranged diagonally.

If no parting at all is used the hair can be brushed off the forehead and a row of little curls brushed from back to front which gives the effect of a tiara of hair.

THE styles Angrave has sketched give you very good examples of the newest hair styles.

If you have rather a flat back to your head which needs to be disguised with rather elaborate hairdressing, study the girl with her back to you. You will see that the hair is brushed diagonally across the crown of the head and arranged in large, flat curls across the back.

It would be equally fashionable to wear one row of these curls instead of two.

Some women prefer to have one or two curls over the ears and the hair brushed up into one coil only all across the back of the neck. This arrangement at the back can be worn with any of the other three styles shown.

When Baby has BRONCHITIS

MY article this week has once again been chosen to comply with my postbag. This time of year colds have an unpleasant way of going on the chest. So if, in spite of our best efforts, the cold or catarrh from which the child is suffering turns to bronchitis much anxiety will be avoided if the young patient is kept in bed from the onset.

If too well to stay in bed, however, he should be confined to one room so that he is in the same temperature.

At night a moderate fire, should be kept up so that the air does not get that icy chill which makes English bedrooms so shivery in the dawn.

By Dr.
Mary Anthony

EVEN if there is no fever all draughts should be avoided. In a large room a screen can be placed round the bed, or behind the patient's armchair. If an ordinary folding screen is not available a clothes' horse hung with blankets is a useful shelter for a child's cot or low chair.

The room should not be too hot and ventilation can be managed without a draught by suitable arrangement of door or window.

If the child is seriously ill with bronchitis or broncho-pneumonia the doctor may order an oxygen tent. The oxygen relieves the distressed lungs and eases the burden of the labouring heart and the patient is quite happy, for he can see through the window in the tent.

For home treatment a steam kettle is sometimes ordered. If this is used at night the child should not be allowed out of doors too soon as a may follow. He should remain in for at least one day after the steam kettle treatment.

An ordinary kettle with a long spout or with a piece of tubing attached, can be kept on the boil so that the air is kept moist. A teaspoonful of Friar's Balsam may be added to the water.

A JACKET made of gamgee tissue (a thick layer of cotton-wool between two layers of butter muslin) is advisable for keeping the chest warm without the trouble of poultices. It can be pinned comfortably round the chest whilst two straps of tape hold it in place over the shoulders.

The old-fashioned method of removing this jacket piece by piece has much to commend it, as it lessens the danger of chill. Gamgee may be obtained from the chemist.

SLEEP is very important and should be encouraged by shading the windows and keeping the household as quiet as possible.

If the child is too ill to take solids, a fluid diet gives adequate nourishment and keeps up the strength. One or two pints of milk and a cup of soup can be managed daily.

When the stomach is not upset by the coughing, a beaten-up egg in milk or a steamed custard is good. If this useful milk diet proves too heavy, the addition of a teaspoonful of extract of malt will make it more digestible. Water, of course, should be given freely, and is usually well taken in the form of lemonade or sweetened barley water.

As the patient improves milk purgings may be given, and toast, also fish.

THE trouble with bronchitis is its tendency to recur on the slightest weakness of the patient. Every care should be taken to prevent a relapse during convalescence. Once the child is able to get up he should be kept in his room for a few days. After a short time in bed a child's limbs are flabby, and loss of weight is usually marked. This is the stage which requires careful watching until strength is built up.

When he is moving about the house the rooms should not be cold. By the time he is acclimatised once more to a calm, bright day, with no sharp wind, will come along when he can safely venture out of doors.

A change of air is advisable before returning to school. Such places as Bournemouth or Torquay or Colwyn Bay are suitable if sunnier climes are not possible.

WHEN recurrent attacks of bronchitis are due to chronic nasal catarrh or constant colds vaccines may be helpful. These are usually injected in carefully marked amounts, and older children sometimes benefit by them. This treatment is, of course, a question for the patient's own doctor to decide.

There is nothing so valuable as getting the child hardened to an open air life. In this way his appetite improves and his physique is better.

Clothing should receive special attention as to its warmth without excessive weight. The clothes worn next the skin should be capable of absorbing moisture, and so prevent the skin from becoming chilled. Fine-wool or a mixture of wool and silk are good.

Parents love to muffle a delicate child up to the ears. As this makes the throat delicate a closed-up collar should only be worn when the child is sitting still in the open air or when travelling.

NEPHRITIS

By Family Doctor

READERS often write in asking me for advice on various affections of the kidneys.

Renal disease, or kidney trouble, is a frequent cause of invalidism. The acute stage usually follows a fever such as diphtheria or scarlet. Sometimes there is a considerable amount of swelling or dropsy in the limbs; heart failure is not unusual at this time.

If recovery is not complete then chronic nephritis is the next stage. The kidneys may have been inadequate from birth, or there may be some other reason for their sudden failure. Usually the victim's pale, white face and lifeless eyes are an index of his illness.

After middle age chronic kidney trouble gets worse; the heart begins to fail and there is a danger of coma or unconsciousness.

DIET can be of great value in the early stages. At the beginning all food is withheld for a period varying from 12 to 36 hours. Even children stand this starvation provided they are kept warm and given plenty of fluids.

Ordinary water, lemonade, barley-water, soda-water or Vichy water may be given, as much as the patient can take without forcing.

If there is nausea and vomiting glucose will relieve it, or sucking barley-sugar.

Afterwards milk and fruit juice may be given, and as the patient improves milk puddings and tea can be added.

WHEN there has been a great deal of dropsy a salt-free diet should be tried, whilst the fluid intake is limited. Later fish and poultry are easily digested, as are also most vegetables.

It is a wise rule to avoid certain vegetables and fruits because of the strain they put on the kidneys. Many readers will be interested in the following list of things to be avoided because they are rich in oxalates: Spinach, french beans, tomatoes, strawberries, rhubarb. Meat extracts, rich soups and sweetbreads are also unsuitable, as, of course, are highly-spiced or preserved foods.

"No Woman Need Grow Old"—Yogi Expert Claims "Miracles"—

WOMAN OF 70 LOOKS LIKE A GIRL

A man who admits to being over 50, with the boyish features and the vitality of a young man of 25, claims to be able to take 10 to 30 years off the life of almost every woman over 50.

Seated in his London flat, his forearms bound with two serpents of gold, his long black hair coiffured like a woman's, the Rajah Lala Krishna Raghobai Ram Singh made an impressive figure as he described to a London Newspaper representative the "miracles" he has wrought.

20 Years Younger

The walls of the little room were covered with photographs of beautiful women—the women whom the Rajah says have lost 20 years and regained new youth and looks by his system.

He pointed to the smiling portrait of a well-known London actress. "When she came to me her hair was grey and turning to silver," said the Rajah.

"She placed herself in my hands, and within a fortnight her hair had been restored to its youthful brown colour."

"To-day that woman looks and feels 20 years younger."

"She was 70, and thought that there was nothing left for her but a few years of miserable old age and death."

"Within a few months she had returned to the career of her youth, and was singing once more upon the concert platform."

The Rajah waved his thin gold-ringed fingers as if in blessing. "No woman who submits to my system of diet, exercise, and mental control need ever grow old or be ugly," he said.

His System

"Beauty comes from within. There is no short cut to rejuvenation, and I do not possess an elixir of life."

"Gracefulness, gentleness, kindness, motherliness—these are the qualities I teach to women. A woman who possesses them must be young and appear young."

"By a perfected system of Yogi breath control and by strict attention to a diet based on the simple products of the earth, every woman can cultivate the characteristics that will give her beauty."

LOCH NESS MONSTER Makes Film Debut

London, Dec. 19. "Cinema-goers in Australia and New Zealand may soon get a glimpse of the famous Loch Ness monster—its debut on the British screen this week as star of a special feature in the first number of a Scottish monthly film review, "Things That Happen."

As much money has been spent on tracking the monster as on the salary of a film-star with box-office draw. But the Loch Ness monster is as elusive as Greta Garbo. Both seem to have the cold northern temperament.

The film was obtained only six weeks ago, after three years of effort. It shows an animal more than 30 feet long, swimming through the loch at a speed of 30 knots—as fast as the Queen Mary.

"Dark grey, almost black in colour, and with the head and neck were parallel with the surface and rising and falling with the movement of the huge body; humps visible as the slippers move beneath them."

"1938" STAMP ERROR JOHANNESBURG VALUES LIKELY TO SOAR

An error in the date on some of the special South African stamps issued to commemorate the Johannesburg Exhibition may unexpectedly increase their value. News of this printing oversight reached London recently. It was stated that a few of the stamps are dated 1938, instead of 1937. The error was discovered by a gatekeeper who took a casual glance at the stamps which form part of a collection at the Exhibition. A fourpenny New Zealand stamp, printed in 1937, had by mistake a tele-scope printed upside-down. Six years ago it was sold in London for about £30. Other rarities included eleven West Australian fourpennies with an inverted swan. Some of these have been valued at nearly £1,000.

NOW THERE ARE SIX

Paris, Dec. 31.

THREE more women pilots have passed the tests for the public aerial transport certificate, making the total six. New holders are:

Mme. Flant, who recently flew to Madagascar as a tribute to the memory of her aviator husband, killed in a crash in Kenya in 1935; Mme. de la Combe, who has taken part in many air races; and Mlle. Lion.

Previous holders were Mlle. Maryse Hilsz, the "Amy Johnson" of France; Mlle. Maryse Bastie, who flew from Le Bourget to Gorki, in Russia, in record time in 1931 and broke Jean Batten's South Atlantic record this week; and Mlle. Regina Winaka.—Reuter.

Ex-King Edward Sold 15 Famous Dogs.

All the spaniels' names begin with the letter "S." They include the famous team Sandringham, Seaton, Sparkle, and Scurry, which have appeared at many shows.

Queen Mary probably noticed other changes when she visited Sandringham at Christmas.

The vineyards and many greenhouses have been pulled down because upkeep was unnecessary and expensive.

Part of the kitchen gardens has also been put to grass.

There are now no fallow deer in the woods. Sandringham has contained a single Christmas tree, from which Queen Mary handed gifts to the servants, estate tenants, and their children.

The King and Queen with Princess Elizabeth and Prince Margaret, stayed with Queen Mary at Sandringham.

WINTER LAY-UP

The German liner "Hindenburg" recently undertook her last voyage across the Atlantic Ocean for this season. She will lay up for the winter.

£30,000 TO FIGHT DISEASE Government's Gift for Research CHEMO-THERAPY INSTITUTE

The announcement that the British Government will give £30,000 towards the establishment of a new institute of chemo-therapy—in which new artificial drugs will be made and their influence on disease tested—was made by Mr. Neville Chamberlain, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, at the anniversary dinner of the Royal Society of Medicine at the Hotel, recently.

Both the Medical Research Council and the Department of Scientific and Industrial Research, Mr. Chamberlain stated, had urged the foundation of such an institution.

"I believe," he added, "that we shall be starting something of which it is difficult to-day to foresee all the possibilities."

THE INSTITUTE'S AIMS

The new institute, Professor Mellanby explained, is likely to be established at Mill Hill, where the Council has already laboratories. It will deal, as have German scientists, with the systematic production and testing of new anti-malarial drugs—but its medical aims will be very much more general than that.

The biggest hope, Professor Mellanby suggested, lay in the production of artificial drugs which would have some influence against bacterial disease. The successful use of the chemical "red protosol" against pernicious fever had, he suggested, established this possibility.

Mr. Chamberlain also indicated that the Government had, within the past two years, increased their expenditure on research in the interests of defence to £3,000,000 a year—an increase of £1,300,000.

Sir William Bragg, President of the Society, pointed out that research was being more and more relied upon as a means to human betterment, and expressed the opinion that one of the most encouraging features of the present time was the fact that social science was just beginning to be "a real thing."

PRISON FOR MAN WHO ONCE OWNED £20,000 STARTED AS MESSENGER BOY

A man who had risen from messenger boy to own £20,000 was sent to prison for 18 months at the Manchester Assizes recently for the fraudulent conversion of £1,795. The money was the bulk of an estate for which he was trustee.

He was Edmund Ogden, aged 78, coal merchant and formerly a mill owner, of Smithy Bridge, Littleborough, Lancashire. It was stated that he had been a member of the grand jury in the court in which he was sentenced.

"It is a painful duty to have to sentence a man of your age," said Mr. Justice Lawrence.

mitted to appear in the Italian papers. He knows it is true because his friend, Signor X, an air pilot, has quietly disappeared from Rome and now writes to his family from Spain. There are many such families in Rome receiving letters from Spain.

Mr. Average-Italian was shrewd enough to guess that Italy and Germany were recognised the Franco Government because they wished to give France additional support to speed up the conclusion of the war.

EDWARDIAN

Ground Troops Still Vital In Warfare

"AIR FORCES ALONE NOT ENOUGH"

"If Franco takes Madrid, it will not be with his bombers, but with his ground troops."

General Sir Walter Kirke, Director-General of the Territorial Army, expressed this opinion recently at the distribution of prizes to the 23rd London Regiment (The East Surrey Regiment) at Clapham Junction.

Sir Walter was pointing out the essential part which the Army, Regular and Territorial, had to fill in our own fighting forces.

The huge armies which Continental nations were organising and equipping, he said, showed clearly that they had no exaggerated opinion of the decisive effect of air forces.

On the Territorial Army rested the responsibility for the ground air defences and the coast defences. These would come into action in advance of all other services. Their object was to gain time to mobilise our resources.

Passive defence would never preserve the British Empire, nor would it enable us to fulfil our engagements to France and Belgium, or any other obligations which we might accept under the Covenant of the League of Nations.

"There are some who think that offensive air action by itself may enable us to do so," General Kirke added, "but there is, I fear, nothing of all other services. Their object was to gain time to mobilise our resources."

"Neither have we any reason to believe that the indiscriminate bombing of the civilian population will cause a proud people to surrender."

Campbell Black—£4,736, No Will

Mr. Tom Campbell Black, the airman, who was killed at Liverpool on October 10 when his plane collided with an R.A.F. bomber, has left £4,736 12s. 6d.

He died intestate. Letters of administration have been granted to his widow, Miss Florence Diamond.

Trials To Begin At Once

MAILS TO BE CARRIED NEXT AUTUMN

By VICTOR BURNETT,

I HAVE discovered the secret of Colonel Lindbergh's flying visit to Ireland.

He was one of a party that forged the last link in negotiations for a North Atlantic air service.

Other members of the party were Mr. G. E. Woods Humphrey, managing director of Imperial Airways, Juan Trippe, president of Pan-American Airways, America's biggest airline corporation, and J. C. Cooper, a vice president of the combine.

Colonel Lindbergh is Atlantic adviser to Pan-American. Imperial Airways and Pan-American Airways are to co-operate in running the Atlantic service.

The reason for the visit was to approve the site chosen for the final jumping-off place on this side. It is at Killybegs, Co. Londonderry, a tiny village near a deserted bay on a desolate coast.

It will become one of the most important air junctions in the world—a station on the newest transport line.

AGREEMENT

The Lindbergh party reached complete agreement with de Valera about Irish representation in the combine, and division of costs for upkeep of the base.

These were the only points holding up the new service. Now they are settled regular Atlantic crossings will start almost immediately.

Big American Atlantic clippers will carry out a series of trial flights. They will not take passengers or mails at first.

The purpose of the trial flights is to get information about Atlantic flying weather and winds in both directions.

Mails will probably be carried next autumn. Passengers will be carried in 1938. It is estimated that the average time for the crossing will be between fourteen and nineteen hours.

One more has been added to the list of early civilisations which archaeologists must explore if they are to piece together the full history of man. It is that of the kingdom of the Mitanni, in the upper valley of the Euphrates, not far from the Turkish frontier of Northern Syria.

Although under Sumerian influence at an earlier period, it has been proved that at least during the period about 1800-1600 B.C. there was, in this isolated district of Asia, an independent and virile civilisation.

The discoverer is Mr. E. L. Mallowan, leader of an expedition to Chugur Bazar, which has been jointly sponsored by the British School of Archaeology in Iraq and the British Museum. Mr. Mallowan described his discoveries at the annual meeting of the Fund at Burlington House, London, recently.

ORGANISED MILITARY STATE. Among his conclusions were that the houses of Chugur Bazar at this period were solidly built of mud brick; their inhabitants were skilled in smelting copper, cast their own weapons, and were members of a well-organised military state. Horses bore elaborate trappings, and chariots were used in war.

There is evidence of contact with Egypt, and the kingdom of Mitanni must at this time, it is believed, have had control of the trade routes to the metal ores of Asia Minor, and particularly of Cappadocia.

A grain, receipt among the discoveries is taken to represent some individual payment of rent or taxes, more than 3,000 years ago.

Mr. Mallowan is to continue his excavations in the coming season, seeking specially for further inscriptions. He will also excavate Tell Brak, described as the most important "mound" in the neighbourhood.

MORE TRAIN "HOTELS"

During 1937 the London and North-Eastern Railway is to be added to its present stock eleven new restaurant cars, 16 new buffet cars, and five coaches of special design which will combine the prominent features of both classes of "travelling hotel."

In the past year 2,741,000 meals have been served on the 275 restaurant buffet cars. It is found that 75 per cent. of the patrons prefer tea and 30 per cent. coffee. In the South tea is more popular.

PRISONER DIES IN GAOL

NATURAL CAUSES VERDICT

Sitting as Coroner at the Central Magistracy this morning, Mr. K. Keen, assisted by a jury comprising Messrs. Teo Sze-wing (foreman), Chan King and Ng Hang-on, conducted an inquiry into the death of Chiu Yung, aged 63, a prisoner of Victoria Gaol.

The Acting Assistant Chief Warder of Victoria Gaol, Mr. A. Paice, stated that defendant entered the Gaol on December 12 to undergo two months' hard labour, and died in the Gaol Hospital on December 28. He identified the body.

Dr. G. I. Shaw, medical officer of Victoria Gaol, testified that he first examined defendant on December 12. The man was admitted to the Gaol Hospital on the same day. Deceased who only weighed 64 pounds died on December 28, the primary cause being pulmonary tuberculosis and the secondary cause cardiac failure.

A verdict of death from natural causes was returned.

TWO MOTORING MISHAPS

EUROPEAN DRIVERS INVOLVED

Two motor-car accidents involving European drivers were reported to the police yesterday.

A man named Wong Sing, aged 53, was removed to the Government Civil Hospital suffering from injuries received when he was knocked down by private car No. 226 driven by Mr. Bathurst in Connaught Road Central.

An unknown Chinese woman was taken to the same hospital suffering from severe injuries to the head caused when she was knocked down in Queen's Road West by car No. 3012, driven by Mr. Daziel.

MONEY, CHEQUE AND STAMPS

THEFT ABOARD THE "HUPEH"

A Shanghai Chinese named Mashiao Hui-se, aged 24, was brought before Mr. K. Keen at the Central Magistracy this morning on a charge of having stolen from Chan Yau-fong, compradore of the s.s. Hupeh, $110.36 in Chinese currency, $3.85 in Hong-kong money, a cheque for $75 and 60 one-cent stamps. The theft occurred yesterday.

Det.-Sergeant Davies stated that while complainant was away from his cabin yesterday, defendant boarded the boat, forced open a drawer and stole the articles mentioned in the charge. A tallyman who heard noises from the compradore's cabin looked in and saw defendant there. On seeing him, defendant immediately ran away, but was finally caught by foks of the ship.

Admitting the charge, defendant, who had two previous convictions for boarding steamers without a permit, was sentenced to five months' hard labour. The articles stolen were recovered.

THERE WILL BE NO WAR IN EUROPE

and will be occupied there for a long time.

The lines of communication of the great army Italy must keep in that country are dependent on Britain's control of the Suez Canal, by her unchallenged sea power.

Furthermore, Italy's economic situation is very weak. Even the expenses of the Abyssinian campaign have seriously embarrassed her financial position.

Russia is fully occupied with her industrial reconstruction and with the immense task of building up a collectivist State in face of tremendous difficulties. The Russian Army would no doubt be formidable fighting in defence of its own soil, but even Stalin would not dare to use it for invading any other country. His dictatorship would be threatened.

This threat applies, indeed, to all dictatorships. The dictator knows that war is a gamble and that losing it would mean the end of his rule.

German Handicaps

I have left Germany to the last. In Germany the economic situation is very weak.

There is great difficulty in purchasing raw materials in Germany even for the programme of rearmament. The people have to go short of necessities, the currency situation is dangerous, and unbiased observers describe the German home situation as about on a par with the situation in 1918 when the blockade was beginning to have its full effect.

Germany has no allies in Europe on whom she can depend.

The German Army is in process of reorganisation, and is short of trained officers and non-commissioned officers, because of the rapid expansion. The Navy is still comparatively weak, and there are no overseas bases.

For all these reasons, therefore, German aggression as a deliberate act can be ruled out.

If we all keep our heads and try to remove such legitimate grievances as exist, there will be no European war.

ANOTHER ASPIRANT FOR COLONIES

Poland has now joined those nations who are seeking more elbow-room. Organised by a political organisation, a "Colonial Day" was recently held for the purpose of impressing upon the people the idea that the Colonial problem has become one of primary importance to the State. It is claimed that as Poland, like other countries, is becoming industrialised, she must have access to raw materials, whilst markets must be found for her industrial products in order to provide work for the unemployed. A further demand is for "free territories overseas"—whatever that may mean—in order to relieve over-population in the Polish cities. These demands are put forward in a manner which is said to brook of no delay, it being declared that for the sake of the peace of Europe satisfaction on the points raised must be secured in the near future. Nothing is said, however, as to how the demands are to be met; neither is there any hint as to where these colonies are to be obtained. The economic aspect of the question, so far as the running of the colonies is concerned, also appears to have been overlooked. After all, colonies are an expensive luxury, especially in the early days, when the foundations have to be laid for future development. There is more than a suspicion in some quarters that this new Polish organisation is largely actuated by a feeling that as other nations are clamouring for more territory, Poland should also come into the picture. A further suggestion is that the issue is being raised mainly for the purpose of diverting the people's minds from other and more immediate discontents, whilst one commentator sees in the move the prelude to an effort to get rid of some of the millions of Jews who live in Poland. Whatever the actual truth may be, it is difficult to see that any very strong case can be made out for Polish expansion overseas. The question of freer access to raw materials is admittedly one of considerable concern to industrial countries,

VOTERS in the United States have told President Roosevelt to lead four years more, and lead he will. Never has a more peremptory mandate been given for personal leadership in a democratic country. To-morrow, President Roosevelt will be inaugurated for his second term of office, which will last until January 6, 1941.

Roosevelt himself refrained from being explicit about his plans if re-elected. He contented himself by saying he would carry on as he had begun.

His first task will be political, as all who know him intimately testify. He will put the Democratic Party's house in order, cut down redundant office holders and name a stronger Cabinet. His ambition is to make the Democratic Party the ruling party of the United States for many terms to come. He wants it associated in the public mind with prosperity, and to leave the Republicans associated with depression.

For his political programme one must look to what Roosevelt was unable to finish in his first term.

First of all is the constitutional issue. He will meet it in the largest sense by the appointment of Justices to the Supreme Court who are sympathetic to the New Deal outlook. In four years enough members of the court will have retired voluntarily or by death to give Roosevelt his chance of amending the constitution by interpretation without having to carry the question to the people.

THERE may be a specific amendment permitting States to enact Minimum Wage legislation. Even Landon spoke for that in accepting nomination.

But the more fundamental questions of what to do about the clauses of the constitution which limit Federal power to inter-State commerce, and which prohibit the confiscation of property "without due process of law," under which most New Deal legislation was nullified, can more readily be dealt with by naming a more liberal court than by constitutional amendment.

Landon charged Roosevelt with intending to re-establish another N.R.A., and challenged him to deny it. Roosevelt's reply was evasive. He listed the objectives of the N.R.A.—better wages, shorter hours, the abolition of child labour and the reduction of "chiseling"; but he also stated that he was going to fight monopoly. Now, the essence of the N.R.A. was that business in granting concessions to labour was given the suspension of the anti-trust but it has yet to be proved that it is impossible to secure these raw materials in any other way than by actual acquisition of colonies. The wiser course would appear to be by the method of trade agreements which result in the removal or modification of existing barriers to trade. There have been many examples latterly of reciprocal treaties along these lines, and the more general this policy becomes, the greater will be the world prosperity which will result therefrom.

Now for it, Roosevelt

By
Raymond Gram
Swing

Roosevelt's second term may be the greatest era of strikes in U. S. history.

Another unfinished job left over from the first administration is Housing. Here the President had already forecast a bigger programme.

HE had been impressed by foreign criticisms of the dilatory way in which the United States tackled the housing programme. Slum clearance had gone forward at a snail's pace. Washington had been caught between the desire to do a thorough task and the fear of taking away business from private builders.

The biggest trouble around the corner for Roosevelt is Labour.

John Lewis tells him bluntly that he was elected because organised Labour and unorganised Labour voted for him. During his first term Roosevelt did open the door for Labour to help itself; but on many occasions he whittled away the rights of Labour as defined by New Deal laws and regulations. Now he is going to have to be the leader for Labour if he hopes to keep the Democratic Party permanently in power.

That means that the weight and sympathy of the Federal Government must be behind Labour's fight to unionise mass production industries. Roosevelt's second term may go down to posterity as the greatest era of strikes in our history. If the Supreme Court throws out the Wagner Law under which Labour's rights are guaranteed and business is seriously affected by paralysing strikes, even Roosevelt's inventiveness will be strained.

Roosevelt is expected to overhaul the whole Federal tax machinery during his second term. He has already promised to revise the new tax on corporate surpluses, and promised that no new taxation will be necessary to balance the budget.

LEGISLATION putting an end to the issue of bonds interest on which is exempt from taxation is to be expected. More "soak-the-rich" taxation is unlooked for, but certainly laws will be passed stopping up the trapdoors by which the rich now evade taxation.

The Cabinet will be reconstructed. Mr. Hull, Secretary of State, is sure of his post. His trade treaties actually became issues in the campaign. So the Roosevelt victory endorses a policy favouring two-way international trade.

Hull, who came into the Cabinet as a stately nineteenth-century idealist, is now the most popular personality in Roosevelt's circle.

Wallace will be Secretary for Agriculture. He raised farm incomes by fifteen hundred million pounds and talked more sense about economics than anybody else in the administration. The President has a strong personal affection for him.

THE Secretary to the Treasury will be Morgenthau. He is Roosevelt's personal representative. By profession a gentleman farmer, he is without financial experience. But he is utterly dependable as a spokesman for the White House, whereas anyone taken from the business world might not be.

All other Cabinet posts are in doubt. Secretary Ickes probably will continue in office. He is a trouble-maker because of his lack of tact. But he is a New Dealer in every pore and devoted to the President.

THERE WILL BE NO WAR IN EUROPE

By LORD STRABOLGI

I meet men and women of many nationalities, and I find them very apprehensive about the possibility of an outbreak of war in the near future.

The farther eastward one goes into the Continent of Europe the more people seem obsessed by the fear of war; and, indeed, many of them do not ask whether there will be a great war, but when will it break out.

I believed that these apprehensions are ill-founded; that there need not be a war in Europe in the near future, and that there will not be a war. I have a number of reasons for this belief.

One, which is psychological, is that the Great War came like a bolt from the blue. The majority of people in all countries were thinking about other things—their businesses, their pleasures, their sports—and the terrible event was unexpected. To-day people are talking about war, and therefore thinking about it and what it means. If war does come it will not come as a surprise, and it will not be possible for statesmen to drift into war.

To reinforce this opinion, let us examine the immediate cause of the Great War. It was the assassination of the heir to one of the great thrones of Europe in a provincial town in Bosnia. The forces gathered, tensions began, and the awful result occurred in August 1914.

Storms That Have Passed

In the last few years there have been several serious events, much more important than the murder of the unfortunate Austrian Archduke, which could have been causes of war had the nations of Europe and their rulers accepted war as being either desirable or inevitable.

Rulers have been assassinated and treaties broken; armies have marched into territory they were forbidden to enter; an important colonial war has been waged by Italy against the influence of the League of Nations and yet peace has been preserved.

This shows, therefore, that the peoples and through them their rulers, however much the latter may blurt and bluster and shout wish to avoid the dread ordeal of battle.

The second reason against the outbreak of war partly explains the first reason: The weapons of destruction have increased in power, and this fact is understood everywhere.

Even before the last great war broke out the public in all countries thought it would be won by the armies, conscript or professional. It was not understood then, as it is now, how the civil population would suffer.

To-day the people know that the most powerful weapon will be the bombing aeroplane, using explosives or poison gas, and that soldiers will no longer be fighting to preserve their homes from destruction, because the preservation of their homes will only be a matter of chance.

Unaggressive Nations

There is a third reason against war—that the countries which are supposed to be the most aggressive are the poorest.

A short campaign can be fought on credit, so to speak, without money and wealth in the form of a store of goods. But now the general staffs have learnt the lesson that no war is likely to be a short war.

This terrible business in Spain, for example is expected to last for another year at least, and I have even heard two years stated as its possible duration.

Somebody has to start a war and remember that all means of conciliation will be mobilised at the first threat. We can leave out the smaller nations. None of them would dare to be aggressive on its own account. But consider the Great Powers.

We can rule out ourselves, and I think it is fair to say that every other country rules us out too. All parties in this country are united in wishing to avoid war.

France is in much the same situation. The French have no aggressive designs; they want to be left in peace—their days of expansion and conquest are over, and this fact is also recognised by everyone.

ITALY'S GIGANTIC BID FOR PACIFIC SUPREMACY: NEW SHIPS FOR HONGKONG

Lloyd Triestino Line to be Merged In All-Italian Combine

FOUR BIG FIRMS TO REPLACE ALL SERVICES

Larger And Faster Liners

ITALY is making a supreme effort to consolidate the position she has already gained in the fight for supremacy on the Pacific Ocean.

Her Lloyd Triestino liners already hold the Blue Riband between Europe and Asia.

These ships—fast as they are—are to be replaced by bigger and faster vessels.

The Lloyd Triestino line will be merged with three other big Italian shipping lines to form one huge combine, which will operate services in every ocean of the world.

In this bid to capture world freights for Italy, Signor Mussolini has adopted a $10,000,000 scheme to reorganise the Mercantile Marine.

Larger and faster liners will be built for all routes.

A headquarters will be established at Genoa for the new company to operate 38 ships on an intensive Atlantic traffic programme, and 6 ships the Far Eastern run.

New offices will be erected at Trieste, Tirrenia and Venice to control operation in northern, southern, and eastern seas.

The whole of Italy's shipping will be directed from these four ports.

HOLLAND ANSWERS GERMANY

JULIANA'S WEDDING FAMILY AFFAIR

NAZI FLAG IS OUT OF PLACE

The Hague, Jan. 4. In connection with the statement in German newspapers that Prince Bernhard, Lippe-Biesterfeld, has shown that he is not a true German, because he did not protest against the fact that the German National Anthem was not played and the German flag was not hoisted during the recent celebrations in connection with his impending marriage to Princess Juliana, the Dutch Government has sent a Note to the German Government stating that, from the outset, it has been Queen Wilhelmina's express desire that her daughter's wedding should be an entirely family affair.

The Dutch Government accordingly informs the German Government that, as far as the flying of flags is concerned, in addition to the Dutch national colours, the flag of Prince Bernhard's family should be flown, and that there is no reason to fly the German national colours for a family affair.

The statement adds that the same considerations apply to the playing of the German National Anthem.—Reuter Special.

DUKE OF KENT ATTENDING

London, Jan. 4. The Duke of Kent, who will represent the King at Princess Juliana's wedding, leaves by air for the Hague to-morrow morning. He will return to London at the end of the week.—British Wireless.

Deserter Sent Back To Hongkong

Manila, Jan. 5. William Gould, deserter from the Royal Artillery, Hongkong, who stowed himself away on the steamer Nankin and thus reached this port, is being returned to the British Colony to-day.

He is aboard the C. P. Empress of Canada.—Reuter.

SHIPPING DUES INCREASE

UPKEEP OF BEACONS AND LIGHT-BUOYS

London, Jan. 4. A Board of Trade announcement regarding dues levied on shipping for the upkeep of light-buoys and beacons in the United Kingdom and the Irish Free State says it was agreed by competent authorities in conference on December 18 that it had become necessary to increase the rates by 25 per cent., the revenue obtainable at the present rates having proved insufficient to meet the cost of maintenance, renewals and improvements.

Accordingly an Order-in-Council will be issued under the Merchant Shipping Act, 1895, bringing the proposed increase into effect from April 1 next.—British Wireless.

300 Fishing Craft Pinched In Ice Packs

Moscow, Jan. 4. An Astrakhan despatch reports that a hurricane has swept 300 fishing boats and their crews into the ice-packs of the Caspian Sea. It is feared all craft are locked in the now solid ice.

Aeroplane and ice-breakers have been ordered to the rescue as the fishermen lack food and adequate clothing.—United Press.

RAILWAYS BUSIER

London, Jan. 4. In the first nine months of 1936 the tonnage of freight conveyed on standard gauge railways in Great Britain increased by 4.3 per cent., or 8,814,743 tons, compared with the corresponding period of 1935.—British Wireless.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

MERIT EXISTS WITHOUT HIGH POSITION. NO ONE CAN REACH HIGH POSITION WITHOUT SOME MERIT.—La Rochefoucauld.

A woman, Wong Tin, was taken to the Kowloon Hospital yesterday suffering from the effects of opium poisoning. She took the opium in mistake for medicine.

A widow, Mai Wong, of 78 Fui Yuen Street, Kowloon, was taken to the Government Civil Hospital yesterday suffering from injuries alleged to have been inflicted on her by a man in a local boarding house.

Under the auspices of the Dante Alighieri Society, a lecture on "Romanticism, Manzoni and Promessi Sposi" will be given in the Jacobean Room of the Hongkong Hotel at 5.30 p.m. on January 14 by Mr. G. P. de Martin.

The forthcoming wedding is announced of Mr. John Gardner, accountant, Asiatic Petroleum Co., residing at 32 Cumberland Road, and Miss Gertrude Sybil Dalziel, the Interport hockey player, of 10 Suffolk Road, Kowloon Tong.

A man named Wong Eui, aged 45, appeared before Mr. K. Keen at the Central Magistracy this morning on a charge of having returned from banishment before the expired time. Defendant was banished for ten years on August 8, 1935, and was found yesterday begging for alms. He was sentenced to six months' hard labour.

A fine of $40 was inflicted on Li Chun-ming, aged 37, unemployed, who admitted the keeping of No. 50 Lockhart Road, first floor, as a common gaming house, before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy this morning. The game played was pai-kau. Thirteen other men charged with gambling failed to appear in Court, and their bail of $3 each was forfeited. Acting Sub-inspector W. N. Darlin prosecuted.

Chan Kwai-cho, of 71 Connaught Road Central, was admitted to the Government Civil Hospital yesterday suffering from injuries caused when he was knocked down by a tramcar in Des Voeux Road near Wing Wo Street. In an attempt to cross Johnston Road, Wanchai, in front of an oncoming tramcar, another man, named Leung Kin, was knocked down and taken to the Government Civil Hospital to receive treatment.

BILLY DESERTS ARMY

THE Fifth Battalion Royal Welch Fusiliers is looking for a deserter—a white goat.

He is Billy, the famous mascot, who wears a uniform of white harness, silver headpiece and gay gaiters when he leads the battalion on parade.

Billy's uniform was taken away, and he became for a time just an ordinary goat in the grazing pastures of Spital, near the seal of Rear-Admiral Rowley Conway, Lord-Lieutenant of Flintshire.

The life was too quiet for Billy, so he just left.

If you should see a white goat who tosses his head at the sound of drums don't take him for the deserter.

Billy's fellow-mascot in Hongkong attached to the 2nd Battalion Royal Welch Fusiliers—munched reflectively at a bunch of H. Q. Orders of the Day when told of the defection of fifth Battalion Billy.

He refused to comment on the situation.

INDIAN LADY'S DEATH

MRS. S. R. CURREEM PASSES

The death occurred at her residence, No. 24 Leighton Hill Road, in the early hours of this morning. Mrs. S. R. Curreem, a well-known member of the local Indian community.

The deceased lady was 50 years of age, and had been in ill-health for some time. She leaves a husband, two sons, Mr. J. S. A. Curreem and Mr. I. S. A. Curreem, a daughter, Mrs. A. S. Saffad, and a brother, Mr. U. Rummah, to whom the deepest sympathy is extended.

The funeral takes place at the Mohammedan Cemetery at 5.15 p.m. to-day.

DUCHESS OF KENT

London, Jan. 4. A bulletin issued from No. 3 Belgrave Square to-day says the Duchess of Kent is making very good progress and the infant Princess is gaining weight steadily. No further bulletins will be issued.—British Wireless.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

Only three-quarters of an inch of rain was registered at the Botanic Gardens during December. This was spread over five days.

Wong Leung, aged 69, of 15 Kai Yau Lane, was admitted to the Government Civil Hospital yesterday on an overdose of Chinese medicine, allegedly in an attempt to end his life.

A 29-year-old unemployed man, Ng Kwai, was brought before Mr. K. Keen at the Central Magistracy this morning on a charge of unlawful possession of a silver salver at Circular Quay yesterday. Defendant stated that he had been given the silver to be sold by another man. Del-Sergeant Cashman asked for 72 hours' remand for further inquiries, which was granted. Bail in $150 was fixed.

Two unemployed men who were remanded by Mr. K. Keen at the Central Magistracy yesterday were sentenced to three months' rigorous imprisonment, with 12 strokes of the cane, for having snatched a handbag containing money from a married woman, Lau Sik-ling, of 19 Babington Path. Siu Yung, aged 28, received a similar sentence for snatching the handbag from a woman, Shum Pin-chu, of 11 New Market Street. Both thefts occurred on Sunday.

A street coolie, named Chan Pui, was taken to the Government Civil Hospital yesterday with injuries received when he accidentally fell from the first floor verandah of No. 30 Tai Yuen Street. Another man was taken to the same hospital when he fell from the first floor verandah of 50 Lockhart Road. He was Wong Lam-chin, aged 30. He was taken to the hospital when he attempted to escape a gambling raid carried out by the police.

Kong Ying, aged 31, unemployed, appeared on remand before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy this morning on a charge of theft of a white woollen sweater valued at $8 from Mr. F. E. Kent, of No. 13 Boy View Mansions, on New Year's Eve. Defendant was remanded as he had denied a previous conviction. This morning, Sub-inspector C. S. Madgwick said defendant admitted the previous offence when taken to the Finger-Print Office. Defendant was sentenced to six weeks' hard labour.

MORE VISITS TO H.K.

U.S. ASIATIC SQUADRON

Singapore, Jan. 1.

United States warships of the Asiatic fleet will in future pay more frequent visits to Singapore and Hongkong.

This announcement was made by Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, commander-in-chief of the U.S. Asiatic Fleet, in an interview in Singapore.

It is understood that the flagship of the fleet and destroyers will pay annual visits to Singapore and that during the year there will be additional visits by individual warships.

These visits, Admiral Yarnell stated, "are a symbol of the cordial relations which exist between the United States and the British Empire. I trust that we shall be able to visit Singapore more frequently and that reciprocal visits will be paid by units of the British Fleet to United States ports."

The Singapore newspapers regard this increased interest by the United States navy in the British naval base as some political importance, but it is stated by Mr. Monnet Davis, the United States Consul-General in Singapore, that the U.S. Asiatic fleet's visit was no more than a "goodwill call" without any political significance.

Following are typical Singapore newspaper comments on the United States naval visit:

The Singapore Free Press: "It is impossible to read some significance into the presence in Singapore at the same time of both American and Dutch naval vessels and to suspect that though both squadrons were making goodwill visits the opportunity was not lost for at least an exchange of views on vital matters connected with naval defence in the Pacific and the Indian archipelago. There are now indications that America realises that running away from her responsibilities does not solve her problems and that, whether she likes it or not, she has no small part to play in the Pacific. Anglo-American co-operation in that ocean has frequently been mooted and it has been freely advanced that there is some understanding."

When a large part of the China station was withdrawn to the Mediterranean during the crisis there with Italy over sanctions a large number of American vessels were at Hongkong and though it was declared a mere coincidence, it was one of those happy coincidences which savour somewhat of destiny."

JAPAN AND HONGKONG
"The possibility of Japan obtaining a foothold in one of the South China ports is proving considerably disturbing to the British, who have exhibited some anxiety about Hongkong, while one matter which is causing grave concern to both the English speaking nations is the alleged fortifications of the Japanese mandated islands, the Carolines and the Marshalls."

"In many respects, therefore, British and American interests in the Pacific are not of the same magnitude, at least run parallel and a visit to Singapore of most of the U.S. Asiatic fleet so soon after a show-down on the nonfortification of Pacific possessions assumes more than an aspect of goodwill."

The Straits Times, commenting on Admiral Yarnell's announcement that the American fleet will visit Singapore more often states:

"Will the American Navy play a decisive part in the Far East or are we to regard the force to which our present guests belong merely as a far-flung scouting screen which will be withdrawn to Hawaii as soon as there is danger of a naval war in the Pacific? And the signs point to the latter conclusion."

THE PHILIPPINES
"The American protectorate in the Philippines has another seven years to run. In 1944 the 'probationary' period of the new Commonwealth will expire, and nothing short of a miracle will keep America in the islands after that; the Philippines are too difficult to defend, they present an ever-present possibility of embroilment with Japan, and they yield no raw materials which the United States cannot obtain equally well from Central and South America. Neither is the American stake in China large enough to justify expectations of armed intervention to protect it against Japan."

"We will thus be well-advised to regard the United States Asiatic Fleet as a scouting force which however familiar may be its flag in the western and southern waters of the Pacific in peace-time, is likely to withdraw in time of war to the impregnable Hawaiian base—a base so valued by the United States as an outpost covering the approaches to the Panama Canal that it is being fortified and garrisoned on a scale far exceeding anything contemplated in Singapore."

"It is not her navy, progressively stronger though that is likely to become under Roosevelt, that America is driven to do so—will bring to "Only one development, in our view, can bring the United States into a war west of Hawaii, and that is Japanese interference with her interests in China, that will be so a challenge to her national honour. YOU CAN STILL ENJOY the unmatched performance of an "Empire Explorer"

When they built their great range of Empire Explorers Mullard remembered the thousands of listeners who have no mains supply. For them they made the "Raleigh" model with the many special features that minimise the disadvantages of battery operation. In performance the "Raleigh" is the equal of the all-mains Explorers—that means that it surpasses in performance any other short wave receiver for overseas listeners and is, of course, completely tropic-proof.

Chinese "Y" Crash Into Senior Grade League Badminton With Nine-Love Win

BEWILDERED RECREIO TEAM WILTS

University "A" Open Strongly Before Own Supporters

LAST NIGHT'S GAMES

(By "Veritas")

All doubts about Chinese Y.M.C.A. being fully up to "A" Division standard in the badminton league were dispelled last evening, when, in making their debut in the senior section, they defeated Recreio second string by nine clear games.

Most followers of the game expected them to win this match, but hardly by such a decisive margin. This means that Recreio "A" and University "A," leading contenders for the championship, have another team to worry about.

Last evening's programme was of particular interest, for in addition to the introduction of Chinese Y.M.C.A. to senior grade badminton, the two University teams, who formerly played as representing Elliot Hall, played their initial matches of the season.

The "A" team won 8-1 against St. Andrew's "A," the match being played on the splendid new gymnasium situated in the University grounds. For roominess and excellent floor conditions this court is easily the best in the Colony; it is rather a pity the walls are white, as this creates a tendency to lose sight of the shuttle. With darker surroundings, this court could become next to the ideal, for it has a roofing which defies being hit by a shuttlecock, and in addition boasts excellent seating accommodation.

VARSITY ENTHUSIASM

A goodly crowd of supporters turned up for the Varsity's first match last evening and warmly applauded winning strokes of both home players and visitors. This display of enthusiasm suggests that badminton is becoming more and more an attractive form of entertainment to Varsity students.

On the whole St. Andrew's did quite creditably against a vastly better-balanced team. They should have won two games, and even three for Fincher and Kew were leading 12-5 in the first match, and then suddenly lost the initiative. Guest and Gray were also nicely set against C. H. Soon and K. S. Liew, but could not force home a well-earned advantage.

This being the Varsity's first match of the season, they shaped well, and certainly played with confidence. They will be difficult to beat on their own court, which is bound to present difficulties to players who are not used to it.

University "B" could make no impression on Recreio "A," and were soundly beaten nine-love, while Chinese Recreation Club garnered points after an interesting match with Free Lances.

Detailed scores of the matches, and amended league tables follow.

"A" DIVISION

UNIVERSITY "A" v.

At the University last night, the "Varsity" "A" beat St. Andrew's "A" by 9 games to 1.

T. C. Lee and P. K. Chan ("Varsity") beat E. F. Fincher and H. Kew 21-12; beat S. A. Gray and A. E. P. Guest 21-3; beat F. A. Broadbridge and F. V. Wong 21-5.

P. E. Tan and P. K. Huu ("Varsity") beat Fincher and Kew 21-11; beat Lee and Chan 21-10; beat Broadbridge and Wong 21-17.

C. H. Soon and K. S. Liew ("Varsity") lost to Fincher and Kew 13-21; beat Gray and Guest 21-18; beat Broadbridge and Wong 21-10.

C.R.C. v. FREE LANCES

At Causeway Bay last night, the Chinese Recreation Club beat the Free Lances by 6 games to 3.

W. C. Choy and H. M. Ho (C.R.C.) lost to E. L. H. Shute and W. Shute 17-21; beat A. L. Fisher and K. Shute 21-7; beat C. G. Fowler and J. L. Anderson 21-12.

PRESS DEFEAT REFEREES

A very lively and sporting little contest was the outcome of yesterday's football match between the European Press and the Hongkong Referees' Association, played by kind permission of the Authorities, on the Army ground at Sookimpo.

The Press won by the odd goal in three, after taking a two-goal lead in the first half, and having a penalty missed after the interval.

The scribes' defence worked together with splendid effect. The Omar brothers were a tower of strength, and generally speaking the half back line was too energetic for the Referees' attack which lacked finishing powers. When McCormack moved up from centre-half to inside right there was a big improvement noted in the Referees' offence, but goal-scoring opportunities were wasted.

The Press attack was always thrustful, and two snap goals by Gray early on made a big difference to the trend of the game. In the second half though, Gray twice missed golden chances; once when he missed a penalty by shooting straight at Isley, and later when, after breaking through from Burnett's excellent pass, he misfired his shot and sent the ball weakly to the goalkeeper.

Serjt. Isley played a sound game in goal after the interval but was shaky at the start. The teams generally were quite well matched, though the Press could have won by a larger margin if they had made fullest use of their opportunities which were more numerous than those presented the Referees.

It is hoped to arrange a return match in the near future.

Incidentally Lee Wai-tong, Chinese Olympic captain, officiated at the game, and handled it in splendid style. He had Mr. W. E. Reynolds and Mr. D. Kossick, two prominent local referees as his line-men.

L. T. A.'s ANNUAL MEETING

Passing Of The "Rabbits" Charter

London, Dec. 14.

With remarkable speed and unanimity two of the most important items of the agenda were ratified at the annual meeting of the Lawn Tennis Association yesterday. "Agreed" was called within 30 seconds to the proposal that when there are late withdrawals from the singles at Wimbledon the vacancies should be filled by competitors defeated in the last round of the qualifying competition.

Only slightly more protracted was the passing of the proposal to seed the third court, covered court, and championships on Wimbledon lines, but in this case there was a swiftly proposed and readily accepted amendment to delete the words "and professional." Since the agenda had been printed the professionals had not representatives of the L.T.A., and formulated a scheme for carrying out their championships on a slightly different method.

When the motion was put forward to restore handicap starts up to 40, this was also passed, but only after considerable criticism and discussion. Mr. G. F. Goodman of Warwickshire, raised the point that there might be many clubs who did not yet appreciate the probable consequences of the proposed new system, and suggested an amendment that the motion be referred back to the Council; and Mr. W. Ingram, considered that the alteration would only be fully effective if the handicaps were seeded.

Mr. Cyril Marriot made what he described as a revolutionary proposal. The alteration, he thought, should be applied to Seals 2 only; all affiliated clubs should be bound by the alteration; and all handicaps should be devised from a central office of the Association.

MORE THAN HALF A LOAF

Most of the meeting, however, were clearly impressed by the sound sense of an earlier speaker, Mr. G. B. Primrose, of Scotland. Welcoming the proposal as the "Rabbits' Charter," he suggested that it was considerably more than half a loaf that the Association were offering to that class of player and that it seemed illogical as well as ungrateful to stick out for no bread in the coming season. The amendment was defeated, without the aid of proxies, and the motion was carried in a similar way.

Earlier "sniping" activities had been those of Mr. Williams, of the Richmond Cricket Club, who wanted a united front of all sports clubs to agitate for reduction of assessments to rates and taxes (his own club's adult members being, in effect, assessed at 25s. a head), and of Mr. J. Haygarth (Heaton Club, Bradford), who gained small satisfaction when he inquired about the lack of success of the Wightman Cup team, and their chances of acquiring team spirit as in the case of the Davis Cup side.

Presentations were made to the members of the successful Davis Cup team, to the non-playing captain, Mr. H. Roper Barrett, and to Dan Maskell and Tom Whitaker, their coach and trainer respectively. Only H. W. Austin and G. P. Hughes of the team were present. C. R. D. Tuckey being engaged in military duties at Calcutta, and P. J. Perry having, as Sir Samuel Hoare remarked, "abandoned for reasons good or bad, into which none of us need enter, the amateur world of tennis."

PRESIDENT RE-ELECTED

Sir Samuel, who was unanimously re-elected President of the Association, voiced their thanks for his services in the past to Perry, whose record is unsurpassed in the tennis world, and expressed their best wishes for his future.

Mr. Roper Barrett in acknowledging the presentation, eulogized the services of Maskell, their "true, good and bona fide professional," and of Whitaker, the "best masseur the team had ever had."

The report recorded the affiliation of 101 clubs, a splendid tale of British achievements on the courts, and sound financial improvement, of which the Hon. Treasurer, Mr. C. T. Sudd, gave illuminating details. Mr. Sudd, referring to a recent inaccurate rumour, explained that whereas loans at low interest had previously been made out of income in good years, and therefore spasmodically, the Association were now prepared, in suitable and thoroughly investigated cases, to grant loans from part of the liquid assets represented by "Investments" totalling £240,000. Expenditure for the past season was down, mainly through economies, by nearly £1,700, and income was increased by £1,000, leaving a surplus of £2,027 instead of a small deficiency, as was the case twelve months ago.

Cambridge Win By Wonder Try Match Hardly A Lesson In Rugger

(By Trevor Wignall)

The high-spot of the annual Rugby match between Oxford University at Twickenham won by Cambridge by two tries (6 pts.) to one converted goal (6 pts.) was a once-in-a-million try scored by J. A. MacDonald, the Light Blues left-wing threequarter.

This was the highly dramatic happening that gave Cambridge the victory, and it occurred so very suddenly that some on the ground may not have had a clear view of one of the most remarkable runs ever witnessed.

MacDonald, with about thirty minutes gone of the first half, and with his team two points behind, cleverly intercepted a pass that was meant for an Oxford man. He was in full sail when he took it, but after travelling about twenty yards he found himself in danger of being hemmed in, or of being bundled into touch, by at least six opponents who were charging towards him.

MEN AND THINGS ABROAD

by Bernard Moore

ANY justification for the recognition of General Franco last week by Germany and Italy is extremely hard to find.

For, not only is the rebel leader very far from having secured military domination over Spain, but even in those parts of the country over which, as the result of ruthless oppression he has control, it is absurd to suggest that "there is no longer any question of the existence of a responsible Government authority."

It is Franco's half-trained Moorish legionaries, engaged in the bitter attack on Madrid, who are rapidly shattering Franco's illusions of sweeping victories. And the reason for it is clear.

Best Troops in Rear

HIS highly trained Spanish army, the very body one would expect to be thrown into the key battle of the campaign, has to be kept in garrison in the territory he has occupied to deal with any popular uprising.

General Franco, I am told, is definitely scared of Government supporters who have remained behind his advance to organise underground resistance. Although he succeeded in terrorising the people when his troops devastated villages and towns and decimated the population, both male and female, he did not succeed in convincing the people of Spain that he was their saviour.

The underground movement in many districts now "under his control" is only kept underground by the presence of his Spanish troops, many of whom themselves are expressing resentment at the failure of their leader to obtain the victory which he assured them would swiftly follow his armed revolt.

Andalusian Unrest

IN Andalusia especially, I am told, there is a tremendous movement against Franco and his forces. The rebels advance through Andalusia, and meet with little opposition except at certain important cities such as Malaga, Granada and Cordoba.

It was in striking contrast to the slow progress in other parts of Spain, where heroic resistance was put up by the men and womenfolk of every small village and town. When the villages were captured their defenders were either driven before the invaders or shot in batches as soon as the villages were occupied.

In Andalusia, however, a large part of the able-bodied population remains working outwardly peacefully, in the vineyards and farms of the occupied area. But many of them are ready to strike when the moment arises, and Franco is aware of it.

Franco the Mysterious

INCIDENTALLY, Franco seems to be doing his best to fulfil at least half of his threat that he would conquer Spain if he had to exterminate half the population in the process.

If he succeeds in his attempt—betting is now about two to one against it—he will have cleared up against him a hatred that will be deep-rooted for many years.

It is strange that although he is more in the news than anybody else in the world at the moment, very little is known about him.

Short and inclined to portliness—he likes to emulate Napoleon—he is a soldier by profession. But, until his present desperate venture, it was his brother Ramon, the first alarm to fly the South Atlantic, who held the family laurels.

First-Class Soldier

BUT Francisco Franco, the General, has always been recognised as a brilliant soldier. He is only forty-five now and was Spain's youngest General at the age of thirty.

He saw most of his service in Morocco, and the story goes that promotions in the Moroccan service were held up for several years because the Minister of War refused to accept the recommendation of the military authorities to give a high command to an extremely youthful officer named Francisco Franco.

These objections were apparently overcome, for at the age of thirty Franco was commander of the Spanish legion in Morocco and was awarded the Cross of San Fernando, Spain's highest military award.

Fore and Aft the Rebels are IN TROUBLE

It was General Franco who was called upon by the Spanish Government to suppress the rising of the Asturian miners in 1934. Eighteen months later the present rebel chief represented the Spanish army at the funeral of the late King George.

What's in a Name?

I SEE, by the way, that he has just appointed a new Minister of Propaganda in his Burgos "Government."

Believe it or not, the new Minister's name is General Asfay.

Mr. Ogilvie-Forbes

THERE is one man in this Spanish affair who deserves all the praise that can be bestowed upon him. He is Mr. Ogilvie-Forbes, the British Chargé d'Affaires in Madrid, who volunteered to return from furlough to take up his post in the Spanish capital as soon as the Spanish situation became really serious.

I strongly suspect that if he had given the word, British representation would have been withdrawn from Madrid when it became obvious that the siege of the city was to be long, arduous and dangerous. But the tradition of the diplomatic service is different, and Mr. Ogilvie-Forbes lived up to it.

Sixteen stone of broad-shouldered good humour and tact, he set off for Madrid with a trunk stuffed with Union Jacks of all sizes for the use of British subjects. His luggage also included a set of bagpipes.

I imagine that the Union Jacks have proved more useful than the bagpipes in the trying weeks that have elapsed since Franco's Moorish legionaries first reached the Casa de Campa.

Besieged Birthday

MR. OGILVIE-FORBES is a staunch Catholic—he was formerly First Secretary at the Vatican Legation—and he has succeeded in establishing the most friendly relations with the Spanish Government. He is liked on all sides.

He has done his best in most difficult circumstances to verify atrocious charges, and on more than one occasion has expressed sympathy with the Government in Madrid over the killing of innocent women and children.

One thing which helped to establish confidence was his undertaking that the British Embassy would be a refuge only for British subjects, although he reserved the right to take steps dictated by ordinary humanitarian consideration in offering shelter to homeless children, etc.

It looks very much as though he will spend his forty-fifth birthday, which is on December 6, in the beleaguered Embassy. It will be a strange birthday party.

The Music Goes Round and Around

DESPITE all the activities of the Gestapo, Hitler's dreaded secret police, underground work by Socialists and Communists still continues throughout Germany.

I have just heard of two ingenious ways of defeating Dr. Goebbels by counter-propaganda which are said to have been employed lately.

Purchasers of gramophone records of the Horst Wessel song, anthem of the Nazi Party, were amazed to discover recently that when the record was half played, the song developed into a fervid lecture on Marxist theory.

Many of the hundred buttons which it is estimated are attached to a man's clothing during the year are merely ornamental.

In all, nearly 3,000,000,000 buttons are used in Britain annually.

Buttons tell tales

ONLY when buttons come off do we realise how very important they are. But all buttons we wear are not useful.

Many of the hundred buttons which it is estimated are attached to a man's clothing during the year are merely ornamental.

The custom comes from the earliest times, for the first paintings which show buttons have no corresponding buttonholes.

In all, nearly 3,000,000,000 buttons are used in Britain annually.

Sign of skill

Buttons tell tales. Buttons are on the right-hand side of a man's coat because in olden times it was convenient for him to reach for his dagger easily.

The two buttons attached to modern coats at the small of the back are a relic of those early times when the coat-tails were buttoned back for convenience of riding or when carrying a sword.

The button on the schoolboy's cap is the outcome of a custom which originated in ancient China. The button then was made of gold. It was a mark of honour signifying high literary skill.

Women's dress may contain no buttons at all which serve useful purpose, yet one frock alone may contain nearly one hundred of them merely for decorative appearance.

Anti-buttoners

So hooks and eyes, press-studs, and elastic do not supplant buttons as much as they might.

There is still a sect in America which will have nothing to do with buttons. The Amish Mennonites, otherwise known as the "hook-and-eye Baptists," believe in a doctrine which prohibits them using anything which they think is ornamental.

FICTION REALITY

THE TALISMAN RING, by Gerorgette Heyer (Heinemann, 7s. 6d.). A rattling Regency yarn, combining detection, adventure, character and humour. With a pound or two of romance for good measure.

HUMMING BIRD, by Eleanor Farjeon (Michael Joseph, 7s. 6d.). A child in a brio-a-brac shop listens to the tinkling song of an old toy and sees strange figures from the past. Elusive charm.

ODD SHOES, by Winifred Watson (Methuen, 7s. 6d.). A family story of Newcastle in the last century, when fortunes were rising and social distinctions were still strong. Romance against a realistic background.

MAN OVERBOARD! by Freeman Wills Crofts (Collins, 7s. 6d.). A body is picked up by fishermen off the Irish coast. Accident, murder or suicide? Leave it to Chief-Inspector French to tell you. He knows.

MIDNIGHT, by Julian Green (Heinemann, 7s. 6d.). A study of a child's fear by a French-American master of the macabre. It has the clarity of a nightmare. Dreadful, but not penny dreadful.

CRIMES OF THE HIGH SEAS

by David Masters (Eyre and Spottiswoode, 8s. 6d.). In which you learn why ships on occasion never reach port.... Fascinating and, unfortunately, true.

THE GARDENER'S COMPANION, edited by Miles Haddfield (Dent, 7s. 6d.). How plants are named. A gardener's weekend calendar. Garden friends and foes. In short, all about gardening.

SELDOM DEER: OR WHEELS ACROSS DENMARK, by Neve Scarborough (Stanley Paul, 10s.). The record of a cycle tour through the Land of Co-operation. Not forgetting the luns and their keepers.

SCOTT OF THE SHAN HILLS, edited by G. E. Milton (John Murray, 15s.). What life was like not so long ago on the Burmese frontier, seen through the eyes of a modest "Empire-builder."

STROLLING THROUGH COTTAGE ENGLAND, by W. S. Perry (Collins, 7s. 6d.). The cottage homes of England, how quietly they stand. Wanderings in the West, the Midlands, the North and the Home Counties.

Sport made most dogs —

some were made to measure

MODERN dogs are more neurotic and sensitive than those of 20 years ago. Breeders are striving for streamlined effects instead of broad, intelligent skulls and robust physiques, said Mr. H. Raynor Hewetson to the National Veterinary Medical Association congress a few days ago.

There is more in dog breeding than you might think. Most dogs have been designed at some times or other for a specific purpose; often not the sort of purpose which would be approved by the RSPCA.

How the Airedale started

When baiting was banned dog fighting in a ring with rules was started. Airedale quarrymen started in to breed the toughest dog they could. They crossed bull terriers with rough terriers, and crossed the result of that with other hounds.

The result was vicious and aggressive in the extreme; just about born fighting.

That is how the Airedale started. They toned it down, standardised the coat, shortened the coat, mellowed its disposition; and you know the result.

But as civilisation marched on, dog fighting was banned. So Englishmen took up dog racing. Obvious choice, then as now, was the greyhound, almost unchanged for 4,000 years.

But there is not much for greyhounds in the working man's home; so the natural thing was to evolve a miniature greyhound. Hence whippets.

Different dogs for different work. Arctic sledge dogs, life-saving Newfoundlanders, the St. Bernard ambulance dog, are all designed to perform their jobs as efficiently as possible.

Dog smugglers

Some say the poodle is most intelligent of all. Continental smugglers use them to run across the frontiers with contraband tied round their bodies, train them to keep away from policemen.

All sorts of dogs have been evolved to help men herd some animals, kill it.

Three-in-one

The sealpham happened because one man who hunted otters, badgers, and foxes hated the idea of keeping three kinds of dog for the purpose. So he cross-bred the short-legged, rather flat-headed sealpham.

Sport is responsible for most dogs. Deerhounds, foxhounds, beagles are all adopted to the prey and to the speed at which they have to chase.

ITALIAN ACTION EXPECTED

TO CHECK SOVIET IN CATALONIA
DESPITE PACT WITH BRITAIN

Rome, Jan. 4.
A hint that Italy may not tolerate the establishment of a communist republic in Catalonia, in spite of the guarantee contained in the Anglo-Italian agreement signed Sunday that the status quo in the Mediterranean would be preserved and Spanish sovereignty remain undisturbed, was given by the newspaper, La Tribuna, to-day. Commenting on the agreement, this newspaper states that the only threat to the status quo in the Mediterranean lies in the Russian exploitation of the separatist ferment in Catalonia. La Tribuna alleges that there already exists an embryo Soviet state in Catalonia, directed by Moscow. It adds that the Anglo-Italian agreement does not change in the least the policy of Fascist Italy and her solid friendship. On the contrary, it is a warning to a clearly defined policy.—Reuter.

Landing Confirmed

Gibraltar, Jan. 4.
It is now confirmed that about 4,000 Italian volunteers landed at Cadiz from the steamer Lombardia yesterday and the day previous, and that they are on the way to the fighting fronts in Spain to assist the Nationalist forces.—Reuter Bulletin Service.

Agreement Welcome

London, Jan. 4.
Both French and German authoritative spokesmen, and the press of both countries, welcome the Anglo-Italian agreement, which they describe as "a genuine agreement," and also a model understanding, insofar as it tends to foster friendship without being directed against a third power. The opinion is expressed that its spirit reaches beyond the local sphere of the Mediterranean.—Reuter.

Traveller Vanishes From Plane

CRASH OF DOOR IS HINT OF FATE

London, Jan. 5.
Passengers aboard an air liner reaching Croydon from Cologne relate the alarming disappearance, during the flight, of Mr. Max Wenner, aged 50 years, who was returning from a holiday in Germany. During the trip, Mr. Wenner, second adjacent, wrote a long letter, rose, and then went to the rear of the machine. Passengers heard a crash and felt the machine give a lurch, after which Mr. Wenner was seen no more. The crash is ascribed to wind pressure slamming the door after Mr. Wenner fell out. Mr. Wenner was a well-known retired Shropshire business man, and was reputed to be a millionaire.—Reuter.

HONOURS FROM NANKING

MANUEL QUEZON AT TOP OF LIST

Nanking, Jan. 5.
Senor Manuel Quezon's name heads the list of 30 prominent foreign personalities decorated by the Chinese Government in the New Year's honours list. The Philippine first president was given the Order of Brilliant Jade, with red cravat and white border. Other foreigners honoured include the Belgian Ambassador, Baron Guillaume, the British Economist, Sir James Salfer, the President of the Pan-American Airways, Mr. Juan Trippe, the editor of the Politique de Pekin, M. Monestier, and the Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Pan-American Airways, Mr. C. V. Whitney.—Reuter.

KUOMINTANG PROBLEMS

GRAVE ISSUES TO BE DISCUSSED

Shanghai, Jan. 5.
Important Government and party problems, arising out of the Sianfu crisis, will be discussed at the forthcoming third plenary session of the Kuomintang, declared Mr. Sun Fo, interviewed to-day. He added that Marshal Chiang Kai-shek had decided to withdraw his resignation which had been twice rejected by the Government. Marshal Chiang was recuperating at a temple in Chikow, near Fenghuang. Mr. Sun Fo stated.—Reuter.

EMBARGO PLANS READY

Washington, Jan. 4.
Representative William B. Bankhead, Democrat of Alabama, and Speaker of the House of Representatives is preparing the House for "emergency action" in neutrality legislation, in event of President Roosevelt demanding such action. He said that he is asking for a Democratic caucus to authorize the immediate reappointment of the present Democratic members of the Foreign Affairs Committee, enabling them to act immediately on any neutrality proposals. Normally such reorganization would require several days. Simultaneously diplomatic officials have indicated that the President is prepared to declare an immediate embargo on the shipment of arms to Spain and Germany if relations are strained to such an extent where a virtual state of war exists, and will not delay until either power has formally declared war. The rapidly widening breach between Spain and Germany is being closely studied, and officials express the belief that within a few days Germany may furnish the legal peg upon which President Roosevelt can hang the embargo on the shipment of arms and war materials to all Spanish factions.—United Press.

NEW YORK MARKET RECOVERS

New York, Jan. 4.
Prices were irregular on the New York Stock Exchange to-day. Trading was light and prices recovered late in the session after slipping on fears of a strike in the automobile industry. However, traders express the belief that the situation can be adjusted without any serious difficulty, and there was no serious pressure brought to bear on the motor section. Utilities performed better than most of the major groups. Oils showed slight signs of resistance with some issues gaining. Numerous specials were higher. Steel issues recovered to 79.4 per cent. of capacity despite the prospect of a shut-down in the automobile industry. Bonds were irregularly lower and issues on the Curb Exchange were irregular.

SPEEDING IMPERIAL AIR LINE

RAIL JOURNEY CUT FROM SCHEDULE
BRINDISI CALL ELIMINATED

London, Jan. 4.
The train journey between Paris and Brindisi, in connection with the Imperial Airways Empire services, will now become a Paris-Marseilles service under new arrangements just made. The flying-boat Castor operated the first service out of Marseilles, carrying seven passengers and mails, the total load being seven tons. This was the Castor's maiden service flight, to-day's journey being to Brindisi via Lake Bracciano, Rome. To-morrow, she is flying to Alexandria with passengers and mails for India. Passengers now only have to travel from Paris to Marseilles and spend one night in the train, instead of two. The services affected are those outward to India and two inwards from Africa. The arrangements will be extended when additional aircraft now on order are delivered.—Reuter Special.

McGRADY TURNS TO G.M.C. CRISIS

Washington, Jan. 4.
The Assistant Secretary of Labour Mr. E. F. McGrady, to-day said that the Secretary of Labour, Miss Frances Perkins, intended to have a conference with President Roosevelt concerning the general strike situation, including the coast maritime strike and the General Motors situation. Despite the desire to avoid any diversion from the maritime situation, Mr. McGrady has entered the automobile controversy and was in lengthy conference to-day with Mr. John Lewis, the labour leader.—United Press.

KARL RADEK CHARGED

ALLEGED PLOTTING AGAINST SOVIET

Moscow, Jan. 4.
The Russian press has finally broken the complete silence it has maintained concerning Karl Radek, a publicist, since the trial and execution of Zinoviev and other alleged anti-Stalin plotters. Radek was arrested in October on suspicion of implication in the conspiracy. The press to-day charges that Radek was a member of an underground Trotsky organisation and that he conspired with Sokolnikoff to restore the capitalist system to the U.S.S.R.—Reuter.
